

THERE FOR HIS BROTHERS. Wilmington Fire Department Lieutenant John Brown, third from left, traveled to Ground Zero in New York City last Saturday to be a part of the memorial services that were held on the third anniversary of the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001. He was joined by Firefighters John Sciara, of Rockland, Doug Spence, of Canton, and Spike Lawless, of Cambridge. Later in the day, the four met with friends at Ladder Company 25 and Engine Company 6 in Manhattan and attended a memorial gathering hosted by Engine Company 201 in Brooklyn. Lieutenant Brown, who helped his colleagues through the tragedy three years ago, has faithfully made the journey back to New York City for each anniversary since the tragedy. (courtesy photo)

Tenants claim they're unprotected

Housing Authority seeks probe against fellow member

By STEPHEN BJORK

WILMINGTON - The actions of a Deming Way tenant have resulted in a group of fellow residents feeling unsafe and claiming that the Wilmington Housing Authority is not doing enough to protect them.

This past Friday night, police were called out to Deming Way off Burlington Avenue when residents reported that an unnamed individual had been banging on tenants' doors.

Authorities located the individual inside a neighbor's unit. He had apparently found the door unlocked, entered the unit and climbed into the bed. When police found him, he claimed to be in his own apartment and appeared confused. He was dressed, but was not wearing shoes.

On April 6 of this year, in a similar disturbance, the male individual entered the unlocked front door of a neighboring unit and called out to his deceased brother. According to police reports, during this incident, he appeared to be "spaced out" and was clothed only in his underwear, but did not make any overt attempt to expose himself. He was ushered out of the unit by the female tenant and back into his own unit.

Medical reasons, the nature of which are protected under privacy laws, are cited for the man's behavior. Following the August incident, he was taken to medical facilities for evaluation and treatment. At no point, according to Wilmington Housing Authority Chairman Charles Fiore, did the man purposely expose himself.

Selectmen approve increase in underground gas storage

Permits help move along plans for new service station and Cumberland Farms

By SHAWN P. SULLIVAN

WILMINGTON - The Board of Selectmen granted two permits on Monday night that will allow two local commercial projects to move forward.

First up, Anthony Guba, representing the SF Land Development Corporation, approached selectmen and sought their approval to increase from 28,000 gallons to 36,000 gallons the underground storage of gas and diesel fuel at the intersection of West and Lowell Streets. The site, which has been the Forrest Service Center for more than a quarter of a century, is being bought and redeveloped as an Exxon Mobil service station and a convenience store, complete with a Dunkin' Donuts drive-thru.

Prior to the selectmen meeting on Monday, September 13, the corporation had garnered the approval of the Zoning Board of Appeals, the Planning Board and the Conservation Commission. Guba will appear before the Board of Health during its upcoming meeting on September 21.

Wilmington Health Director Gregory Erickson, Fire Chief Daniel Stewart and Building Inspector Daniel Paret all recommended approval of the

Car thief nabbed

WPD hopes arrest will bring recent vehicle break-ins to an end

By STEPHEN BJORK

WILMINGTON - The Wilmington Police Department is hoping that the summer's rash of car break-ins will come to an end with the recent arrest of the town's number one suspect.

Richard Williams, currently residing in East Boston with a female companion, had been identified by the Wilmington Police Department as the primary suspect in the car breaks. In recent weeks, a thief had broken into vehicles parked in such areas as Marcia Road, Pineridge Road, Linda Road, Carolyn Road and Allgrove Lane. In most instances, the cars had been unlocked.

Wilmington Police Lieutenant Christopher Neville established surveillance outside Williams's East Boston apartment, which was located not 60 yards from a police precinct, on Monday, September 5.

Voters shape November ballot

Incumbent Sheriff DiPaola tops ticket

By STEPHEN BJORK

WILMINGTON - Local voters reported to the polls in modest numbers for the State primary on Tuesday, September 14, with 1,108 voters helping to shape the November ticket. Of them, 896 chose a Democratic ticket, while 212 chose a Republican ticket.

This was the first opportunity for Wilmington voters to use the newly acquired optical scan voting equipment, keeping poll workers on their toes.

"Everything went all right, but it was a stressful day getting used to a whole new procedure," said Town Clerk Kathleen Scanlon.

A low number of contested spots was one reason for the 7 percent turnout of Wilmington's 14,714 registered voters. The only contested race on the Democratic ticket was for the office of Sheriff of Middlesex County, with no contested races showing on the Republican ticket.

Incumbent James DiPaola topped the three-way race with 483 votes for the opportunity to appear on November's ballot as the Democratic candidate for Sheriff of Middlesex County. Brian Gillis came in second with 209 votes, followed by Robert DeMoura with 156 votes.

The Republican Party did not offer any candidates for the office of Sheriff.

Stephen O'Malley, Jr. won the right to appear on November's ballot as the Republican candidate for the office of Representative in Congress with 189 votes. The Democrats' sole candidate for the position of Representative in Congress was incumbent John F. Tierney,

Fiscal Year 2004

Counsel costs exceeded $36K

By SHAWN P. SULLIVAN

WILMINGTON - Legal expenses for Fiscal Year 2004 created a shortfall of more than $36,000, Town Manager Michael Caira told the Board of Selectmen on Monday night.

Earlier this summer, Selectmen Chairman Michael McCoy asked Caira to provide the board with an expenditure report for the town's legal costs. During the selectmen meeting on Monday, September 13, McCoy stated that the board has an obligation to report the previous fiscal year's total for legal costs, just as it would equally have to report shortfalls in the town's budget for such categories as snow and ice removal and expenses related to the police and fire departments.

"People have a right to know where all the money is going," McCoy stated. "I just wanted the facts to be out there."

The town appropriated $132,800 for its legal expenses for Fiscal Year 2004. Specifically, $112,800 was appropriated for the town's expenditures, while $20,000 was designated to those pertaining to the Water Department.

According to Caira, who quoted figures provided by Town Accountant Michael Morris, the

TMHS Titans clash with robotics competitors

By STEPHEN BJORK

TWEEKSBURY - The Tewksbury Memorial High School (TMHS) Titans were back in action this past weekend, returning from a robotics competition with a quarterfinalist finish.

The Titans, the high school's robotics club, traveled to Manchester, New Hampshire, on Saturday, September 11, to compete against 13 other teams in the "River Rage" invitational meet at Manchester West High School.

Senior Nick Pappas, the President of the Titans, led his team into battle against stiff competition. The team was accompanied by adult mentors and Tewksbury residents Bob Buehler and Jim Pappas.

According to John Morgan, a physics teacher and club faculty advisor, the Titans' robot, Atlas, fared well in the morning seeding matches with a respectable fifth place. Atlas was eliminated, however, during the afternoon's quarterfinals.

During the competition, Atlas was required to run autonomously for 15 seconds, during which it was to travel 30 feet and perform a specified task. Completing that task set a number of inflatable balls loose onto the "playing field." At the 15-second mark the team began controlling Atlas remotely with a joystick to bring as many balls as possible back to the human players for them to toss into a goal within the allotted time. Atlas was also designed to pick up a larger ball and to "cap" the goal with it. Some of the competing robots were also designed to finish the event by grabbing onto the goal and hanging from it, a design aspect that was deemed to be a bit overreaching for Tewksbury's young robotics program.

Tewksbury's Robotics Club was founded just last year and Atlas was originally built to compete in last winter's US FIRST Robotics Competition. In that competition, the Titans faced off against more than 1,500 students representing more than 50 other high schools from across the northeastern United States and Canada.

Russell Morin, a TMHS Class of 2004 graduate, began the club following a lifelong interest in the field of robotics. Currently, Morin is a first-year engineering student at Worcester Polytechnic Institute.

The Titans plan to compete again in this year's US First Competition. In early January, US FIRST will announce a challenge for which students will design and build a suitable robot. Students will be given 6 weeks to design and build a robot using a common parts list. Teams will not only be scored on their robot's performance, but also on employment strategies that include alliances with other teams.

The Titans are sponsored and supported by a number of Tewksbury businesses, with Raytheon Integrated Defense Systems acting as the principle sponsor donating $10,000 last year alone. Raytheon provides not only funds, but engineers and machinists to work along with the students in the designing and construction of their new robot.

"The students gain an introduction to the engineering process and some are inspired to pursue technical careers," said Morgan, citing Russell Morin as a prime example.

The US FIRST competition is one of 27 across North America, the winners of which go on to national competition. More than 900 teams, and more than 200,000 students, competed world-wide last year.

FIRST, which stands for For Inspiration and Recognition of Science and Technology, was established in 1989 by inventor Dean Kamen as a way to energize young people's interest in science, technology, and engineering. It is a non-profit organization and is also headquartered in Manchester.

More information about the organization and competitions can be found at www.usfirst.org.

It's Your Money

BETTER BUSINESS EXPENSE DEDUCTIONS

Do your employees get reimbursed for money they spend for business purposes? How? There are real advantages to an accountable plan.

Under the accountable plan, it is understood that employees will be reimbursed for actual, substantiated business expenses. Miles driven for business, if substantiated, can be reimbursed at the federal standard mileage allowance. Where there are any excess cash advances or reimbursements, these must be returned. The plan itself need not be in writing, but all documentation - records of advances, expense reports, and the like - must be kept.

The advantages are considerable: the company can deduct the amounts paid, up to Tax Code allowances, and the reimbursements are not considered taxable income to the employees. Otherwise, the employees and the company would owe income and payroll taxes on the amount of the reimbursed expenses, and employees could deduct them only to the extent that they exceeded 2 percent of AGI. We're tops for business accounting. What can we do for your company? Talk to us at:

"Business" Practices

Wilmington Selectman Michael Newhouse was on to something when he requested as an agenda item for Monday night's meeting the topic of how he and his colleagues can best navigate the "New Business" segment of their twice-monthly gatherings.

Newhouse introduced the issue in the hopes that the Board of Selectmen would establish guidelines for more productive "New Business" segments during meetings in the future. How was he to know that the topic would weirdly veer off into an hour-long, unrelated debate about the treatment of senior citizens in the community?

But let's not digress from the issue as the board did on Monday night.

According to Newhouse, the purpose of the selectmen's "New Business" segment is to give the board, the town manager and other officials the time to prepare for "intelligent and meaningful" discussions of important issues faced by the town.

"Of course, (New Business) can also be used to address emergencies that arise after the Chairman sets the agenda, but every effort should be made prior to the meeting to inform the Chairman, the board members and the general public about the nature of any emergency to be discussed," Newhouse suggested to Selectmen Chairman Michael McCoy in the memo that requested Monday night's agenda item.

Amen to that. For quite some time now, the "New Business" segment has become a meeting within a meeting, a marathon stretch in which selectmen either free associate or plow through a laundry list of issues for which their fellow board members might not be prepared. Selectman Ray Lepore put it best.

"The problem that I see," Lepore said, is that "as soon as someone speaks, or even requests, there's parties that want to debate, right on the open floor."

Never mind that Lepore then embarked on a monologue that starkly contrasted the succinctness he was seeking for "New Business." He had a point.

Lepore stated that he had recently been up in North Conway, where he caught a selectmen meeting. According to Lepore, North Conway selectmen use their "New Business" segment as an opportunity to pass on questions and concerns, so that they can be followed up by the chairman and addressed at the next meeting.

Great idea.

On Monday night, Newhouse and Lepore attempted to bring structure and discipline to "New Business." Their attempts seemed to have worked, if only a bit. Sure enough, throughout the rest of Monday night, some selectmen, however playfully or snidely, wondered out loud whether the subjects they brought up would better be addressed as an agenda item at the next meeting. Perhaps the seed got planted.

Nobody's trying to suppress free speech here. The idea is to correct the mistaken impression that formless discussions, micromanaged requests and debates for the sake of debates are preferable in democracy, when, in fact, efficiency, diplomacy and preparedness should be.

Standing Eight Count

by Stephen Bjork

"Don't you ever run out of ideas for your column?" people often ask me in my imagination.

Not so far, but some weeks it is more of a struggle than others. And then, every once in a great while, it just writes itself. Once in awhile I don't have to come up with an idea, I have simply to keep my eyes open and be willing to soak in the breathtaking levels of stupidity existing on this planet.

My schedule has become extremely hectic since I've recently begun studying law and this past Monday was, as usual, fast paced and demanding. Then as the Judge Mathis show broke for commercial, a breaking news report showed video of a man dressed as Batman standing on a ledge of Buckingham Palace after having scaled the palace's front wall.

Batman, it was reported, is a member of "Fathers 4 Justice," an organization devoted to campaigning for the expansion of rights of divorced fathers to see their children. Who knew Batman had so many problems at home?

He stood on the ledge for more than five hours doing little more than pacing back and forth over a banner reading "Super Dads of Fathers 4 Justice" and occasionally waving at the crowds below. It looked an awful lot like the Caped Crusader was a superhero without a plan.

And may I say, incidentally, that I was very disappointed in Batman's general build. The comic book and movies apparently go to extremes to exaggerate his overall physique by depicting him in a skin tight costume accentuating every bulging muscle. In real life, however, he appears rather soft and non-athletic with an ill-fitting suit that tends to hang off of him like a baggy prison issued jumpsuit. The suit was skin-tight in only one area causing me to avert my eyes and leaving me to wish that he had invested in a codpiece. Holy hotdogs, Batman! Why don't you cover that thing up? No judge in his right mind would allow this guy to see anyone's kids, never mind his own, after seeing him in that outfit.

Police finally removed the Dark Knight Detective from the ledge with a cherry-picker. How humiliating is that for a superhero? Proof positive that he is way past his prime as a crime fighter. In his day, Batman has faced the likes of the Joker, Mr. Freeze, Cat-Woman and has cheated death on countless occasions. There is no way in the world that he would have fallen for the old cherry-picker trap when he was on top of his game.

On the way down, police removed the Batman mask and replaced it with a white helmet while Batman waved and clapped - apparently more than comfortable wearing a helmet in public.

Now, I'm all for father's rights, but there are circumstances in which a child is better off with out the influence of his or her biological father. A dad dressing up as a superhero for the purpose of scaling a national monument would, in my book, qualify as a textbook example. My opinion on this matter could possibly be swayed if the superhero in question was actually foiling a crime as opposed to committing one.

Batman's secret identity, it turns out, is Jason Hatch, a 33-year old father of two who has not been able to see his children in four years, "even though he lived only a short walk away from them," according to Associated Press reports.

Look, if the location of the Batcave is such a big secret, how do you expect the kids to visit?

The story keeps getting better. Apparently, another Father 4 Justice member dressed as Batman's youthful companion, Robin, accompanied Hatch to the grounds of Buckingham Palace. The two of them used an aluminum Bat-ladder to scale the palace wall, but Robin only made it half-way up. Apparently police found it out of the ordinary for two superheroes to be climbing up the side of the royal palace in such a fashion and rushed over to the scene.

Robin came right down when police threatened to shoot him. What a wuss! Not until he reached the ground did he come to understand that police in England do not carry firearms.

This is great - Robin, whose secret identity is David Pyke, was not detained by police and was allowed to wander off. Ya gotta love those English Bobbies.

Pyke was quoted as saying, "Not seeing your children is worse than being put in prison." I wonder how he would compare it with being committed to an asylum.

Naturally I assumed that these were nothing more than two nutcases making a mockery of a well intentioned organization, but after doing a little bit of research I found that this whole Batman fiasco was sanctioned by Fathers 4 Justice and that this was not the first time that superheroes have taken a British landmark hostage in the name of that organization.

According to www.fathers-4-justice.org, the organization is a new civil rights organization comprised of fathers, mothers, grandparents, teachers, doctors, company directors, policemen, barristers, and apparently superheroes.

In February, for instance, four dull-witted superheroes climbed Bristol's Clifton Suspension Bridge and remained there for an entire day, necessitating the closure of the bridge and inconveniencing thousands of English commuters. Batman, Superman, Spiderman, and the Green Arrow, stood atop the bridge milling around with little to do. The Green Arrow guy appeared a little bit miffed that all the best heroes had already been spoken for.

When darkness fell they began tossing fireworks off of the bridge; you know, just to add credibility to their general mental state.

There is a great video linked to the Fathers 4 Justice website showing Anna James, a BBC reporter, reporting from the scene. It is after dark and the sounds of fire crackers or M-80's being tossed off the bridge can be distinctly heard in the background.

"We lost one of the superheroes within the last hour," James reports. "He climbed down, managed to evade any notice or arrest from the police, he removed his Superman costume and left the bridge apparently unnoticed even though he was apparently only wearing boxer shorts and a pair of socks."

That's spectacular.

Then in May, one of their members, disguised as a mild mannered non-superhero, made his way into the House of Commons and struck Prime Minister, Tony Blair, with a paintball.

Do these fruitcakes really think they are furthering their cause this way? The group claims that their membership increases dramatically after each of these stunts. I don't find that to be all too surprising. Jim Jones found 900 people to follow him to Guyana and talked them all into drinking poisoned Kool-Aid. No I'm not surprised that a number of deranged fathers living on the fringe of reality are coaxed into signing up after such stunts, but I would recommend a thorough screening of these recent applicants.

Can you imagine a grown man with a shred of sanity being convinced to join the organization based on those ridiculous antics?

Were these new recruits on the fence about the whole thing or did they just happen to have a superhero fetish?

"Welcome to Fathers 4 Justice. We are now in the middle of a letter writing campaign to our representatives in Parliament for extended father's rights."

"Can I be Aquaman while I write my letter?"

"We would expect no less, from you. You, my friend, will fit in very well around here."

These people make Robin Williams' Mrs Doubtfire character appear credible. How did they come up with the whole superhero idea? What was the runner up option?

"Okay, welcome to the Fathers 4 Justice meeting here in our secret lair. We have two proposals on the table to increase our exposure. Stanley, here, proposes that we draft a petition calling for more rights for divorced fathers to have access to their children and that we canvas the countryside collecting signatures. So far that has received a rather lukewarm reception from the membership. Jason, however, I have to admit that I'm excited about this one; proposes that we take on the identities of superheroes and make general nuisances of ourselves."

"Maybe we can wear superhero costumes while collecting signatures for the petition?"

"No, I don't think so - it's one or the other, guys. Everyone in favor of shaming our families on an international scale? Great; it's unanimous."

Well, I have to admit; when I first began this column I was leaning against the whole Fathers 4 Justice strategy, but I think I've been talked into it. If anybody needs me, I'll be on top of Town Hall in my Green Lantern costume. Yes, I have one; so what?

Wilmington and The Great Depression

... as remembered by John F. Maguire

I've really enjoyed writing about this beautiful old town of ours and I hope that those of you who were interested and read these chapters enjoyed them as much as I did putting them together.

I was a better person for having lived here during those Depression Years and I learned many of life's most important lessons. For example, I learned the value of money. Even today, if I see a penny lying on the sidewalk, I'm not too proud to bend down and pick it up. Having my father as my prime example and an admonition from him, "John, we weren't put on this earth to have fun, we were put here to work," living in the town afforded me the opportunity to develop some pretty good work ethics. I also learned that crime doesn't pay; I don't swipe tangerines any more.

There are two more subjects I would like to write about briefly, that many of you may recall from the era: There was an old fellow up at the far end of Wildwood who had a small bicycle shop and his name was Henny Penny. After having visited the place once or twice, I wanted a bicycle. My father had recently begun work and things were improving financially for our family. My father, after much urging and pleading, finally took a look at the bike I had my eye on. He really could not afford to buy this bike for me, but he didn't count on the persuasive powers of a young boy. He finally relented and bought the bike. It cost $35, a week's pay at that time. This was a brand new blue bicycle with a horn, siren and foptails flowing from the handle bars. At that tender age, I didn't realize my own selfishness, but my father's love prevailed and, once again, he indulged me, as he did throughout my life. He was always there for me, a truly beautiful person.

Another subject that some of you might find interesting during those times were several restaurants available in town and nearby, probably patronized by many of you. There were two restaurants on Main Street, the Black Cat and the Rainbow. The restaurant that used to be the Black Cat Restaurant, run by the Del Torto Family, is still in existence and is now Rocco's. Directly across the street was the Rainbow Restaurant, which met its demise years ago and is but a memory today. Both were very impressive restaurants for those times. Also in town was the favorite hangout, Huntley's Lunch, a diner beside the police station. And who could forget Sailor Tom's in North Reading, known for it's delicious fried clams? Two other restaurants also specializing in fried seafood were the White Spot in Woburn and the Countryside in Lexington. There was one other favorite establishment known for its steaks and that was the Reading Diner. My mouth waters when I think of how tasty food was back then when I grew up; to name a few things, fried clams and potato chips, kettle cookies, cheese tidbits, and popsicles and fudgicles. Candy was a favorite and a nickel bought a huge Hershey Bar, that today would cost a dollar or more.

As I wind up this series, I want to thank all of you who have taken the time to read what I have written. Everything written has been factual. I've either experienced, observed or known firsthand about the subjects related to. For the most part, I detest fiction and fantasy. As a child I could never stomach the comic pages - they were so fictitious. Nevertheless, should you begin to have doubts about me, I assure you, I do have a good sense of humor - just making a point.

A few words about the Wilmington Town Crier: Let me begin by stating that editors, as such, are a very snotty bunch of people, and I know because I've knocked on enough doors. It's rare when they even will take the time to sit down and talk with you. However, there are exceptions to every general rule, and, of course, that rare exception is the Editor for this weekly, Shawn Sullivan. On that first day, he did sit down and talk with me and encouraged me to lay it all out; his enthusiasm for what I was proposing exceeded my own. He has given me full reign and shown confidence in my abilities, supporting me 100% in my writings. I couldn't ask for better exposure. I would also like to congratulate the entire staff of the Town Crier for what I believe to be a very well produced and excellent weekly newspaper. Thank You all for your efforts and courtesies extended on my behalf.

So, finally, thank you, Wilmington, for the privilege of having been a resident of this delightful little community for five of the most formative years of my life. Of all the cities and towns of our great Commonwealth, the Town of Wilmington is, by far, my favorite locality.

John F. Maguire, a retired attorney who now lives in Wayland, resided in Wilmington for five years during the 1930s. With the completion of this series about the Great Depression, he is currently preparing future columns that will explore his further experiences over the years.

Wilmington Library Notes by Christina Stewart

Vote! It Does a Nation Good

"Vote! It Does a Nation Good!" was selected as the inspirational slogan for the upcoming series of events to motivate Wilmington teens and their families to become informed and active in the democratic process of their town, state, and country.

Nathalie Demers, the Teen Services Librarian at the Wilmington Memorial Library, has been meeting with representatives from the League of Women Voters, the Wilmington Middle and High Schools and the Friends of the Library to organize a roster of exciting events and opportunities related to the upcoming presidential election.

"According to Demers, 'We are hoping to get financial support from a local bank to help fund this exciting program.'"

Martha Stevenson, from the Wilmington League of Women Voters, wants to remind everyone that "democracy is not a spectator sport." All Middle and High School students are encouraged to get involved in the following events:

1) Local author Janet Tashjian has written a new young adult novel called Vote for Larry. It tells the story of a 17-year-old boy from Massachusetts who runs for president of the United States in 2004! The author has agreed to visit our library and read from her book on October 14,

2) A National Student-Parent Mock Election will be held at the Wilmington Middle and High Schools on October 28, 2004. The event will be organized by local members of the League of Women Voters.

3) Teens are invited to participate in a contest and write essays on various topics including: "Do you think the voting age should be lowered?" and "Why don't more young people get involved in the democratic process?" (Deadline to enter is October 13, 2004)

4) Students are invited to take part in an art contest and design posters, bumper stickers, or buttons pertaining to the election or other issues related to voting and the democratic process. (Deadline to enter is October 13, 2004)

5) Posters and blank registration forms will be set up at the high school and the public library to encourage 18-year-olds to register to vote. (Deadline to register to vote is October 13, 2004)

6) On the real election day, November 2, the public library will host a party for teens. Wilmington's mock election results will be announced and winners of the writing and art contests will be honored.

Scollay Square

David Kruh returns to Wilmington Memorial Library

on Monday, September 20, at 1 p.m. to present his slide show program "Scollay Square."

Based on the author's first book on Scollay Square, Always Something Doing, this slide show describes the evolution of the part of Boston where everyone went - but few admitted it!

From John Winthrop, who settled here in 1630, to Sally Keith, who entertained here in the 1940s and 1950s, to Government Center today, this show will surprise you with tales of Revolutionary War heroism, scientific breakthroughs, and Civil War courage - all in the same place where a hot dog stand and a burlesque theater made truants of all New Englanders. (Jack Thomas of the Boston Globe wrote that David has a "...a fascinating slide show...full of splendid anecdotes...") This program is sponsored by the Friends of the Library.

Winners of Adult Summer Reading Program Receive Prizes

Wilmington teens and adults took the challenge to "Read! Explore Other Worlds @ your library."

The program began on June 14 and ended on August 27. Thirty-four readers submitted a total of 127 entries with the name of a book that they read during the summer. The prizes for a free drawing were donated by the Friends of the Library and local businesses.

Winners of the drawing have been notified and are listed below: Donna McLaughlin (Country Chef Restaurant), Michele Burke (LeDuc's Gift Shop), Josephine Towers (2 Girls & Me), Rosemary Bransfield (Sunnyside Cafe), Therese Pazzdziorko (Elia's

Thank you to all that participated and enjoyed a summer of reading.

Book Discussions

Bookends, the library's book discussion group, met on Thursday, September 2, to discuss John Adams by David McCullough. The book received six thumbs up and one thumbs down. Bookends will read Crow Lake by Mary Lawson and discuss it at the October 7th meeting. Copies are available at the library.

PageTurners, the library's morning book discussion group, will meet on Tuesday, September 21 at 11 a.m. to discuss Peace Like a River by Leif Enger.

The next Teen Book Discussion II will meet on Monday, September 20 at 7 p.m. The group voted to discuss two books this month: The Gospel According to Larry and Vote for Larry, both by local author Janet Tashjian.

In both books, Massachusetts teen Josh Swenson (a.k.a. Larry) gets involved in internet activism and politics. In Vote for Larry, Josh (Larry) runs for president of the United States in 2004, and he's only 17! Extra copies of these books are available at the library.

Library now open on Saturdays

The library is now open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays until June.

HERO HONORED. The 495th R/C Squadron dedicated its airfield on Pinnacle Street in Tewksbury to John Ogonowski on Saturday, September 11. Textron awarded contract from Hamilton Sundstrand

WILMINGTON - HR Textron, an operating unit of Textron Systems, announced recently that it has been awarded a contract from Hamilton Sundstrand to provide Dual Vane Pump Servovalves to F135 Engines for the Lockheed Martin F-35 Joint Strike Fighter.

Hamilton Sundstrand is a key member of the Pratt & Whitney (P&W)-led F135 Development Team and is responsible for providing the controls and the gearbox to the F135.

This program covers the System Design and Development (SDD) phase from 2004 to 2007, with an option for the production phase estimated at $29 million over 24 years. The first prototype unit delivery is planned for November 2004.

The servovalve controls the output pressure of the engine hydraulic pumping system. This system is tasked with providing the muscle power to the engine actuation systems.

"We are truly proud to be selected as a part of the F135 Joint Strike Fighter team and to provide our industry-leading servovalves for such a technologically advanced engine," said Frank Tempesta, the senior vice president of Textron Systems. "The JSF program is the Department of Defense's focal point for defining affordable next generation strike aircraft weapon systems, and we are pleased to work with this team of innovative leaders."

Joe Klocko, the vice president of Aircraft Products and Turret Controls at HR Textron, indicates, "This has been a highly competitive award, and we are pleased to have been selected by Hamilton Sundstrand as their partner on this important new program. This win validates our approach for providing customers with a high-value solution to their servovalve needs, and it expands our existing relationship with Hamilton Sundstrand."

Lockheed Martin is developing the JSF F-35 in conjunction with its principal industrial partners, Northrop Grumman and BAE Systems. The F-35 advances stealth technology by greatly reducing the maintenance required for low-observable materials upkeep, and by bringing stealth out of the realm of specialized night missions and into round-the-clock service. Information fusion, dramatically increased un-refueled range, precision all-weather targeting, and reduced reliance on support personnel and equipment are among the capabilities combined into a single strike fighter for the first time.

The F135 Propulsion System Team consists of P&W, the prime contractor with responsibility for the propulsion system and system integration for all variants; Hamilton Sundstrand, provider of the F135's control system, external accessories and gearbox; and Rolls-Royce, providing the Rolls-Royce LiftFan(TM), F3 Bearing Swivel Module and Roll Posts to the STOVL (Short Take-Off/Vertical Landing) F-35B. The technologically advanced F135 has evolved from the highly acclaimed F119 engine powering the F/AE-22 Raptor.

Textron Systems Corporation, an operating division of Textron subsidiary Avco Corporation, provides innovative technology solutions to meet the needs of the global aerospace and defense industries. The company supports military precision engagement and dominant maneuver with strike weapons, mobility and surveillance systems. The Textron name is well known in the areas of advanced weapons, surveillance systems, aircraft control components, specialty marine craft and armored vehicles.

Insurance Weekly

REST INSURED

As you get caught up in the excitement of purchasing a home, make sure you also pay attention to the insurance implications involved in protecting your most valuable asset. To begin with, find out if the house you are purchasing is located in a flood zone. If so, you will need a separate flood insurance policy, over and above your homeowners policy. It may be a good idea to get a copy of the house's claim loss history. This will provide five years of information on the number and types of homeowners insurance claims filed by the previous homeowner. If the house had water claims, it could be a red flag of a problem that should be remedied before purchasing.

Have you covered all the bases necessary so that your home is properly insured? Does your current homeowners insurance cover you adequately? We would be very pleased if you place your trust and business with us. We are committed to demonstrating to you that your confidence is well placed. If you have any insurance questions, please feel free to call us today at 978-657-7200. You will be treated with the courtesy and respect you deserve as a valued client. Insurance doesn't cost - it pays! You'll Like the Way We do Business.™

NOTE: Older homes may have features, such as plaster walls and moldings, that are more expensive to replace and may, ultimately, raise the price of your insurance

Tewksbury Parent Advisory Council A Program on Internet Safety and Stranger Awareness

TEWKSBURY - The Town Wide Parent Advisory Council will present a program on Internet Safety and Stranger

Awareness on Tuesday September 21, 2004 at 7 p.m. in the auditorium at the John W. Wynn Middle School. The presenter will be Attorney Nora Todd from the Middlesex District Attorney's Office.

The program will provide parents and guardians with important information about student use of the Internet. Many students spend considerable time each day on the Internet. Attorney Todd will present safety information to insure that students do not fall victim to Internet lures. Attorney Todd will also address some safety precautions in the area of stranger awareness.

The program will also offer some guidelines about proper supervision of you child when using the Internet. Students sometimes use the Internet to engage in "chat room" conversations that are disrespectful and harmful to the reputations of other students. These conversations sometimes lead to conflict in the school.

This program supports the Tewksbury Public School Core Value to offer a safe, positive, learning environment where the rights of all school community members are respected.

"It is our hope that this program will support the efforts of parents, guardians and school personnel to make Internet use a positive and productive experience for our students," said Superintendent of Schools Dr. Christine McGrath. "We hope that many people will take advantage of this program."

Wakefield Homecoming planned for Sept. 25

WAKEFIELD - As the days grow cooler and the first leaves begin to fall, the town of Wakefield is finalizing its plans for its annual "Homecoming" Festival.

The event, planned for September 25, (rain date date October 2) is an old-fashioned Yankee Homecoming with a harvest theme.

Horse drawn hayrides will circle Wakefield Common, where a juried craft fair will feature the work of over 110 of the area's finest artists and craftsmen. Discriminating shoppers will be able to choose between original primitives on wood, hand-made jewelry, hand-polished gemstones, wooden toys, hand crafted dolls, children's clothing and accessories, and more one of a kind gifts and collectibles.

Adjacent to Lake Quannapowitt, a farm stand will offer seasonal fare from cider to pumpkins to cornstalks and mums. Creative families are invited to participate in the Scarecrow Building contest (free of charge; registration recommended); those with a hearty appetite can test their endurance in the pie-eating competition. (blueberry, of course - no hands, please!) A barnyard animal petting farm, inflatable amusements and children's crafts, games, and contests are also featured.

The event is underscored with traditional music and entertainment, from puppet shows to musical offerings including a renowned 'oompa-pa' brass group, the Oktoberfest Band, some of the area's best folk music from Quarter Moon. Circle September 25 on your calendar and plan to stop by Wakefield Common between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. for Wakefield's eleventh annual harvest festival, the Homecoming.

Car thief nabbed

side to a vehicle twice, but did not drive the vehicle," Neville said about Monday's surveillance, which began at 11 p.m. and ended at approximately 2:00 a.m.

Neville did a check on the vehicle's registration and found that it had been reported stolen out of Melrose. Local authorities recently recovered two vehicles stolen from Melrose in Wilmington.

There was no way to charge Williams with the theft of the vehicle without catching him operating it. As a result, the vehicle was allowed to remain where it was, which helped authorities track moves made by Williams. If the car had been towed, then Williams may have been free to steal another vehicle.

Over a three-day period, with assistance from the Governor's Auto Theft Task Force, police found that the car had been moved during daytime hours.

"Apparently, they were using the car during the daytime, but we know that our car breaks were not occurring during the daytime," Neville said.

The car was not in the area when surveillance resumed at 11:00 p.m. on Thursday, September 9, so Neville alerted Wilmington and surrounding communities to be on the look-out for Williams.

At approximately 12:45 a.m. that night, Sergeant Mark Gaultieri, of the Billerica Police Department, found Williams's stolen vehicle parked inconspicuously among other cars on Ferren Drive, a Billerica side street. Gaultieri, who was wearing his uniform but was driving an unmarked car, set up surveillance.

Shortly after, Gaultieri observed a pick-up truck racing down the street towards the vehicle. He stopped the motorist for speeding. The operator of the pick-up turned out to be Williams in a truck that had just been stolen from a Billerica residence. Williams sped off from the Billerica detective, only to crash into an oak tree less than a quarter of a mile away before a pursuit could be established.

Williams was extracted from the 2000 Ford F-150. As emergency personnel cut off his clothing to determine injuries, more than $50 worth of change fell out. He was also found to have several hundred dollars in cash, several wallets, and credit cards in his possession at the time.

Williams was transported to the Lahey Clinic in Burlington, where he was treated for a broken jaw, arm, and ribs.

According to Billerica Police Detective Roy Frost, Williams was charged with stealing a vehicle, failing to stop for a police officer, receiving stolen property, and committing numerous vehicle-related offenses.

The Wilmington Police Department does not have charges pending against Williams due to a lack of physical evidence linking him to the actual car break-ins. Neville, however, feels that Williams's arrest does bring to an end the recent rash of car break-ins in Wilmington.

"We are convinced that this is the man we've been looking for," Neville said. "This should put an end to all of the recent car breaks."

Deming Way

Tenants claim they're unprotected

According to Fiore, a number of steps have been taken to ensure the safety of Deming Way residents. Fiore says that medical agencies are involved and continue to monitor and to work with the individual.

"The actions I'm taking are based on the advisement of state attorneys and the Massachusetts Department of Housing & Community Development (DHCD)," Fiore said.

According to Fiore, the residents most directly affected are satisfied with the Housing Authority's actions. In fact, says Fiore, the President of the Tenant Association read a letter commending the Housing Authority during its most recent meeting.

Dorothy Butler, a Deming Way resident and former 13-year member of the Housing Authority, is not satisfied.

"That man walked into a woman's apartment during the daytime all exposed and nothing was done by the Housing Authority or the police," Butler said. "On Friday, he was pounding on doors and calling the woman's name. I can't believe that he didn't know what he was doing."

Butler cannot understand why police have not charged the man for either incident, nor why the Housing Authority Executive Director, Karen DeJoie, has allowed him to remain as a tenant.

"I have nothing against the director, but she has an obligation to provide safe and sanitary conditions, and I don't believe that she is providing safe conditions," Butler said. "I don't know why this man is being protected, but we are deathly afraid of him."

Attempts to reach DeJoie were unsuccessful.

The fallout of the incidents has resulted in a request for an Ethics Commission investigation of a Housing Authority member.

The Housing Authority voted 3 to 2 last Thursday to ask for a state investigation regarding accusations that member Marilyn Cox took photographic copies of a tenant's personal file. If wrongdoing is established, it could result in criminal charges.

"If one of our members obtained copies of a tenant's records, it would be a blatant violation of privacy laws," Fiore said. "She feels what she did was within her rights."

Cox was reticent to speak on the matter and has engaged the services of an attorney to represent her.

"My priority is, and has always been, the safety of the tenants of Deming Way," Cox said. "I state emphatically that I did absolutely nothing wrong."

town spent $130,059.75 on its legal fees last year, creating a shortfall of $18,059.75. The Water Department incurred legal fees of $38,328.72, surpassing last year's appropriation by $18,328.72.

Overall, Wilmington spent $169,188.47 on legal bills during Fiscal Year 2004, exceeding the initial appropriation by $36,388.47.

Caira stated on Monday night that the shortfall was covered by $18,059.75 from the Professional and Technical Services Account and $18,328.72 from receipts generated by the Water Department.

Additionally, the town incurred costs for legal expense reimbursements to the tune of $9,488.72, which was also paid for with funds from the Professional and Technical Services Account ($8,255.68) and water receipts ($1,262.74).

Expense reimbursements include payments made to town counsel for such costs incurred by the firm as photocopying, traveling, postage, telecommunications, faxes, courier services, and so on. These costs are exclusive of non-disbursement expenses.

Legal expenses began to mount earlier this year after Town Counsel Paul DeRensis, of the firm Deutsch, Williams, Brooks, DeRensis & Holland, PC, successfully renegotiated his contract with the Board of Selectmen in December.

In July of 2003, DeRensis signed a contract with a flat fee that was consistent with the town's method of appropriating legal expenses. Last December, though, he claimed that such an amount was proving insufficient, so he sought a new contract. Selectmen granted him one, in a 4 to 1 vote, with then Selectman Robert Palmer dissenting. Under the new contract, DeRensis and his firm worked under a lower retainer fee but could bill for litigation at $160 per hour. In January, that hourly billing rate jumped to $165.

Legal expenses climbed in January and February. Last spring, the selectmen began to attempt to reign in legal expenses. The board voted unanimously to institute a monetary cap of some sort, but could not agree with each other or with DeRensis on an amount. The board ultimately re-appointed DeRensis for Fiscal Year 2005, under a new contract that does not feature a monetary cap but does include a 60-day exit clause. Under the clause, the town or DeRensis has the ability to dissolve the contract with no less than 60 days' notice.

The 60-day clause ideally protects the town, should monthly billings for legal expenses once again climb too high. The clause also affords DeRensis the right to step aside if at any time he feels that his firm is not being compensated appropriately.

According to Caira, legal expenses for this past July, the first full month of the new fiscal year, totaled $22,004.65

Selectmen approve increase in underground gas storage

Permits help move along plans for new service station and Cumberland Farms license request.

According to Guba, SF Land Development Corporation plans to remove the underground steel tanks at the property and replace them with larger, double-wall fiber glass tanks and new piping.

Selectwoman Suzanne Sullivan asked Guba about the corporation's progress in cleaning the site of its contamination, in accordance with Chapter 21E of Massachusetts General Law.

"We hope that this excavation, pulling tanks out, putting new tanks in, and the other work we have to do on the property, will provide an opportunity to remove any of what we call the residual contamination that may be present there and replace it with clean soil," Guba replied. "I think this is going to go a long way to helping push that site a little further."

Sullivan recommended that the Board of Selectmen offer the new property owners a conditional approval to make sure the applicant meets all deadlines under Chapter 21E to remove any contaminants that have leaked from the original tanks. Guba countered that a conditional license would not work.

"It's kind of tough to have a conditional approval on a license because once we put the tanks in the ground, they're there," Guba said. "To lose that license would be kind of difficult. I don't know how you rescind that afterwards. How do you reduce the capacity of the tank after it's already in the ground and buried?"

Selectmen Chairman Michael McCoy considered granting the permit for the storage increase to be a win for Wilmington because doing so would better ensure a clean-up at the site.

"I think it's a win-win situation for the town to give the permit," McCoy said. "Now we know the place is going to get cleaned up. Mobil wants to clean up and be done with it."

"Well stated," Guba agreed.

According to Guba, the developers hope to get all approvals and permits by the end of this month, close with the new property owner and start construction in October or November, and complete the entire project by January or February. Guba assured selectmen that he could then provide to the board the report filed by the corporation's environmental consultant to the Department of Environmental Protection.

"That's something that would be appropriate to come back with and present, so that you can have an understanding of what took place and what remedial actions were actually performed," Guba said.

The board voted unanimously to grant the license to SF Land Development Corporation to increase the underground storage of gas and diesel fuel at the property.

Selectmen also approved, by a vote of 4 to 1, a request for a license to add a third tank for the purpose of storing gas, waste and fuel oil at the site of a future Cumberland Farms at 205 Main Street.

According to Cumberland Farms representative Robert Schuler, the convenience store company bought the property in September of 2003. In the time since, the two tanks on the property, which had capacities of 12,000 and 8,000 gallons, have been replaced by ones of equal measurements and superior quality. Schuler told the board on Monday night that Cumberland Farms hopes to add a third tank to the property that would hold 12,000 gallons.

Prior to the selectmen meeting, Cumberland Farms had received the approval of the Planning Board. Appearances before the Board of Health, the Zoning Board of Appeals and the Conservation Commission have also been scheduled.

According to Town Manager Michael Caira, Fire Chief Stewart, Inspector Paret and Health Director Erickson all recommended approving the license request.

The Board of Selectmen voted to approve the license, with Sullivan as the lone dissenter. Sullivan called the property "near and dear" to her heart because it is located within the town's Zone II and has had existing contamination for "at least a decade."

Sullivan was particularly skeptical when she was told that natural attenuation would be used to clean the property.

Natural attenuation relies on the belief that a property can naturally rid itself of contaminants over time.

"These sites fall through the cracks, especially when you have a change of ownership," Sullivan said.

THIRD ANNIVERSARY OF SEPTEMBER 11. The surviving families of Peter Gay and Peter Hashem were surrounded by a sizable turnout of family, friends and residents during a ceremony on Saturday, September 11 at the Tewksbury Public Library in which a rendering of the soon-to-be-built Tewksbury 9/11 Memorial was unveiled. WHS Football season opener

Herra, Wildcats march past Generals

The Wilmington High football team got off to a strong start beating Hamilton-Wenham on Friday night, 28-14. Running back Zach Mayo contributed to the win taking the ball for several yards on a handoff before being tackled.

Undoubtedly the most disappointing loss of last season for the Wilmington High football team was their heartbreaking 21-20 defeat at the hands of Hamilton-Wenham in the second to last game of the season. What better way, then, for the Wildcats to get this season underway than with a rematch against team that kept them out of post season play.

Friday night at Alumni Stadium, the Wildcats gained a measure of revenge for last season with a convincing 28-14 win over the Generals in the Cape Ann league and season opener for both teams. The Wildcats were led by junior quarterback Joe Herra, who dominated with both his arms and legs, throwing for 154 yards and three touchdowns and rushing for another 147 yards.

The Wildcats trailed 7-6 in the first quarter before breaking the game open with 22 second quarter points, and coasted to victory from there, allowing only a last minute touchdown to the Generals which made the score look closer than the game actually was.

Wilmington coach Bob Almeida was pleased with the way his team played against such a quality opponent.

"I am thrilled, absolutely," Almeida said. "They had some pretty good players playing for them. This was a big win for us and I was proud of the way the kids played."

It looked like the Wildcats were about to take the lead on their opening possession of the game. On their second play from scrimmage, Herra ran a bootleg to the left side. It looked like he would be stopped after about a ten yard gain, as he was swarmed by Hamilton-Wenham defenders, but he somehow broke free from the pack and raced towards the end zone. Just as he was about to cross the goal line, however, a General defender caught him from behind and knocked the ball loose. The General's Alex Madden recovered in the end zone, and the threat was thwarted, with Hamilton-Wenham taking over on the 20 yard line.

"I thought we were about to go up right there, but their kid made a great hustle play," Almeida said. "Hopefully Joe learned from that and it won't happen again."

That was probably the only mistake Herra made all night. On the Wildcats next possession he led the offense on a seven play 65 yard drive to take the lead. The drive was capped when Herra hit wide receiver Sean Murphy on a perfect fade pattern up the right sideline, hitting Herra with the pass just as he was crossing the goal line. The extra point rush failed and the Wildcats led 6-0 with 2:49 left in the first quarter.

It didn't take the Generals long to respond, however. Later in the quarter, quarterback Tim Puopolo hit a streaking Evan Beilin over the middle and Beilin raced untouched into the end zone to tie the game. When Beilin added the extra point kick, the Generals led 7-6 with 33 seconds left in the quarter.

Hamilton-Wenham benefited from 20 yards of penalties on the 76 yard drive, a trend that continued for much of the game, much to the chagrin of Almeida.

"We took a lot of penalties," Almeida said. "Some of that was a result of us being undisciplined, but I also thought the officiating was not as good as it could have been."

It looked for a moment that the game was going to be competitive throughout, but the Wildcats quickly went about the business of dispelling that notion. On their next series Wilmington need just five plays to move 66 yards and regain the lead. Senior Joe Mayo got things started with a 16-yard reception from Herra, and once again it was the Herra to Murphy connection that lit up the scoreboard with Herra hitting his favorite receiver for a 38-yard scoring pass with 8:43 left in the half. Herra ran in the two point conversion for a 14-7 lead.

"Joe and Sean are a great combination," Almeida said. "Joe has a real feel for where Sean will be. It's nice to have a pair that works that well together."

The defense stepped up on Hamilton-Wenham's next possession. After a 45-yard kickoff return to the Wilmington 35 yard line, the Generals looked to be in good position to respond with a score of their own. But on the second play of the series, the Wildcats forced a fumble and junior defensive back Ryan Olivieri came up with the recovery.

The Wildcats made the Generals pay for the turnover, putting together a great drive of power football, marching 74 yards behind the running of Stephen Downs, Rich Barry and Herra. Most of the runs were blasts right through the middle of the line, with the Wildcats chewing up not only yards, but the clock as well. Downs capped the drive with a four yard run up the middle. The extra point kick failed, but the Wildcats now led 20-6 with 2:44 left in the half.

"That was a nice drive for us," Almeida said. "(Hamilton-Wenham's Drew Mullen) was out of the game for them and their linebacker was hobbling a little bit so we were able to take advantage of that, and our line did a great job."

Another great kickoff return, this one of 67 yards, set Hamilton-Wenham up the at the Wilmington 15 yard line to start their next drive, but once again the defense stepped up when they needed to. Defensive linemen Mike Haeppers and Brennan Jones combined to drop the General running back for a loss on third and short, and offensive star Murphy made an impact on defense as well, breaking up the fourth down pass.

Wilmington took over at their own ten yard line, and rather than running out the clock they began marching down the field behind the running of Robbie Gillis and Downs. The Wildcats also used a little trickery, executing a perfect hook and lateral play with Herra completing a pass to Murphy who lateraled back to Gillis. The result was a 22-yard gain that put the ball at the General 27 yard line.

The Wildcats closed out the scoring on the 1st play of the half. Herra connected with Mayo on a pass down to about the three yard line. It looked as if Mayo would be brought down short of the goal line, but he literally willed his way into the end zone, fighting off the Hamilton-Wenham defender all the way before diving in for the score as time expired in the half.

"That was just a fantastic play by Mayo to close the half," Almeida said. "Sometimes we have to convince Herra to throw to someone other than Murphy, but I don't think that will be the case anymore."

WHS Girls Soccer

Defending champs too fast for Wildcats

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

In the season's home opener, the Wilmington High girls soccer team couldn't hang with the returning Division 3 state champion Lynnfield Pioneers, who used its speed, skill and experience to defeat the 'Cats 3-1 at the Shawsheen Elementary School on Monday afternoon.

With the loss, the Wildcats are now 1-1 on the young season after defeating Masconomet Regional, 2-1, last Thursday in their season's opener.

"They are a good club," said Wildcat coach Sue Hendee about Lynnfield. "They are as good of an offensive club as I've ever seen. They are just as dangerous offensively as they were last year and they lost a lot of players up front."

"They are just intent on scoring. (Lynnfield) has decent defenders back there, but they have that much pressure on the goal that it doesn't matter how much goals they give up because they are just going to outscore everybody. They're tough, they are skilled and they are very fast."

Wilmington jumped out to a quick 1-0 lead scoring just three minutes into the game. Taking a throw-in to the left of the Lynnfield net, senior Lani Cabral-Pini tossed a strong throw to the middle of the pack. After the ball bounced around a bit, senior Teresa DeSimone was able to blast home a shot to the top right corner making it 1-0.

From there on, it was pretty much all Lynnfield. The Pioneers added two goals to close out the first half, the first coming in the 10th minute, and the second coming in the 35th minute.

The Pioneers added a much needed insurance goal about 12 minutes into the second half. Lynnfield had dominated the first portion of the second half, and put the game away by poking in a loose ball which bounced around in the slot area.

Wilmington couldn't muster much there after offensively as senior tri-captain Debbie Lyons had the best bid, but her left footed shot from the right wing went a bit wide.

"When we play with the ball on the ground and intent with our passing we're good," said

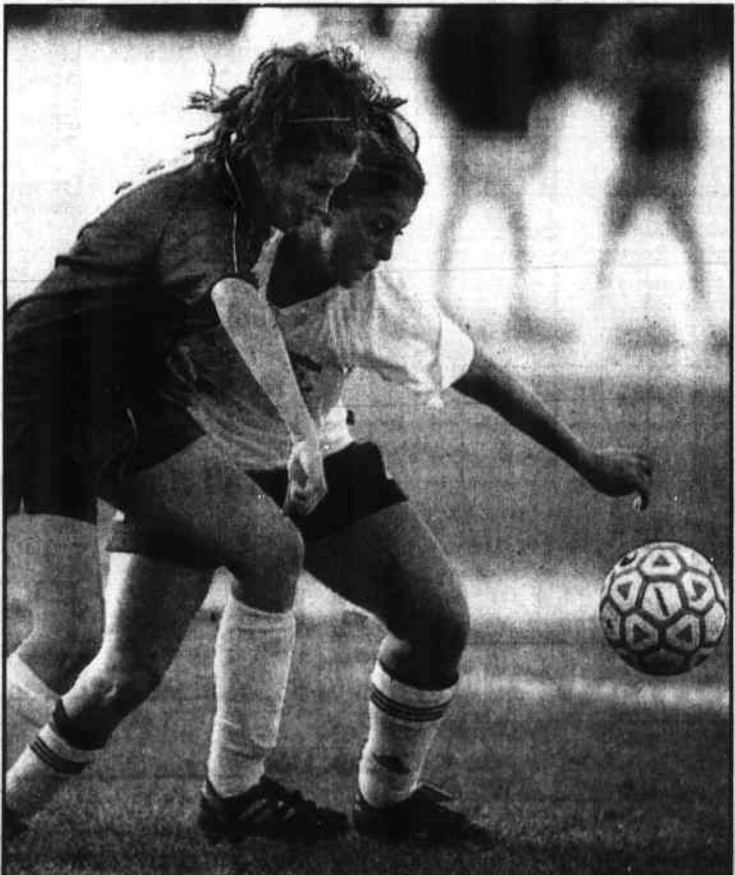

Hendee. "Kick and run doesn't work. It was the same against Masco and I understand first game jitters especially since we have a lot of kids who have yet to play a varsity game and that's a difficult transition because it is faster but it'll come."

"We need to get some more scoring opportunities. We have a big void to fill without Ashley (Steenbruggen) and Lauren (Rappoli) but as soon as our forwards get to working together more we'll create more opportunities."

On Thursday, Wilmington edged out Masco, 2-1. Lyons scored the game winning goal with 3:30 left in the contest. She set up junior Jackie Mello with the team's first goal just before the halftime break.

Wilmington travels to neighboring Tewksbury for a 10:00 am non-league game on Saturday morning.

Stone found not guilty

Somerville, Mass. (September 14, 2004) World heavyweight champion John Ruiz' longtime manager/head trainer, Norman Stone, of Wilmington, today in Somerville District Court was found not guilty of charges he threatened somebody's life.

"The case had no merit as we asked for a speedy trial Stone said. "I never threatened anybody's life. I'm glad it's over and the judge found the complaint a liar."

Attorney Antony Cardinale represented Stone, who leave this week of the Poconos to open training camp for Ruiz in preparation of his November 13 title defense against Andrew Golota at Madison Square Garden.

Tewksbury resident to play hockey for BU

Patrick Cullity said that it hasn't sunk in yet. Well who can blame him, since after what he's accomplished hasn't happened too often.

For what's believed to be the sixth person from the entire town of Tewksbury to reach this incredible level, the 17-year-old Cullity will be dressing up as a Boston University Terrier for the 2006 season, playing Division 1 collegiate hockey after recently receiving a full scholarship.

Cullity joins a list of people who include Russ Mann (St. Lawrence), Dave Wilkey and Colin Ahern (Providence College) and most recently Mike Correia, who was a back-up goalie at Boston College in the late 90s to have the chance to play at such an elite level.

"BU was an easy decision," said Cullity, a junior now at the Berkshire Academy. "You have the Beanpot, they are in the National title hunt every year, the new rink and the legacy of the program all of it just made it an easy decision for me. I'm still in shock though, it really hasn't set in yet."

Cullity is the youngest of four

Volleyball team spikes Tewksbury's chances of a win

BY SANDRA FLETCHER
Sports Correspondent

With both varsity volleyball teams in a rebuilding season, the Tewksbury High Redmen hosted the Wilmington High Wildcats in a non-league battle, with the 'Cats coming out on top 2-0 (30-26, 30-26).

Wilmington head coach Mark Staffier works his Wildcats to preserve their upstanding reputation as one of the most competitive teams in the Cape Ann League while new Head Coach Kerry Lane and the Redmen are focusing on moving up in the standings going from two wins a season to at least ten wins in order to qualify for the state tournament in November.

After suffering a huge loss to the Dracut Middies on Friday, Tewksbury made a huge effort to regroup and give Wilmington a run for their money. The first match ended in a score of 30 to 26 favoring Wilmington.

As a team leader should captain Meg Godding acted as the main setter and guided her team to a win along with her fellow captain Kelley Lemke whose defense was completely on the ball.

The second match began with Tewksbury in the lead and the girls motivation in high gear.

Team captains for Tewksbury Taylor King, Alicia Rocco, and Samantha Ventura kept the up beat spirit going until the near end of the game when Wilmington began to come out from behind. Right as Wilmington began to come to the front, Tewksbury called a time out and gave themselves a chance to regroup.

Once the minute was up, the girls all took the floor again and even with the inspiring words from Lane, Wilmington pulled out their second match win with a score of 30 to 26. These two wins ended the game for Tewksbury and Wilmington walked away with their first win of the season.

"Even though we lost, it was a huge improvement from our first game," said Lane, who was referring to the team's game with Dracut. "The girls were really happy with their performance against Wilmington on the court tonight and we picked up on some other things we will work on in practice for our next game."

Some of the things the Redmen will focus on is keeping loose on their toes and communicating more on the floor, calling to each other and spotting. Focusing on who is hitting the ball and where it is going is something that both teams have stated that they are working on.

Wilmington is not quite the power house they once were within their league, but they did pull through for a win. Staffier spoke to his Wildcats after the game about their win and what they can do to improve as the season progresses. According to Staffier, keeping focused on where the ball is at all times and facing the teammate that is in control is a major key to his team's strategy.

"We are happy to begin the season with a win," said Staffier. "We still have a long way to go and a lot of work to do, but we're a young team and we are just taking one game at a time."

Wilmington and Tewksbury will both face highly competitive teams through out the season before the state tournament even begins and each coach is doing his and her best to prepare the girls for those challenges. With ten wins still a goal, each team is focused on the closest upcoming games and improving for the future.

Boys lose first two meets of season

Officially girls cross country season ending

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

While it looks as if senior Chris Murray continues to emerge as one of the better runners the boys cross country team has had over the years, it also appears as if the girls team might not have an official meet all season long.

Last Thursday at home, the two teams hosted a tri-meet with Lynnfield and Hamilton-Wenham and the problem for the girls team was just two runners were healthy enough to give it go, therefore both meets were forfeited. However, Jen Loranger and Kristine Kovalenko ran unofficially and put in pretty good efforts, finishing at 24:55 and 26:50, respectively.

"We still have five girls on the roster," said coach Tom Bradley. "One is hurt and I'm not sure when she'll be able to run and right now I think we can only count on three.

There's nothing you can do. We tried to get some girls out for the team and we were unsuccessful. We'll have to forfeit the matches and the girls will have to run officially."

As for the boys, Murray came in first place in the tri-meet beating all of the other runners with a time of 17:55. Bradley said that certainly his time wasn't the greatest, but neither were any of the times from the three teams, since it was the first meet of the season. Wilmington was defeated by Hamilton-Wenham, 26-33 and by Lynnfield, 25-34.

Junior co-captain Tom Miele was right behind Murray taking second against Lynnfield and third overall against HW.

"Then there was a big gap between our second runner and the rest of them but the good thing was our third, fourth and fifth runners were pretty close to each other which is a good thing," said Bradley.

Ryan Curtis was third for Wilmington finishing at 21:29, followed by Mike St. Aubin and Sean McPherson who came in at 21:37 and 21:40, respectively.

"I'm not disappointed at all the way the boys ran. Both Curtis and McPherson had personal bests and they ran much better than they ever did all of last year," said Bradley. "And St. Aubin is new to the team and I think he's going to be good. I don't think he has the confidence in himself as of yet to really push himself."

Freshman Matt Bibeau was sixth for the 'Cats finishing at 21:50, followed by Dan Jamerson, who was seventh.

"I knew Murray and Miele would be right up there and Murray had no pressure at all in the race as he won it by an easy 100 yards or so," said Bradley. "But there is still that big gap. I think we have some upcoming meets that are winnable, and I can see the boys winning some meets."

Field Hockey team taking small steps

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

Still looking to see her team score its first goal of the season, and still looking for her first victory as the new field hockey coach at Wilmington High, Carol Mutchler isn't that worried. After all she knows progress has been made from the team's season opener last week to Monday's loss to the returning Division 2 state semi-finalist, North Andover.

"The very young and inexperienced Wildcats were defeated 3-0 last Thursday against a decent Newburyport team, a game which Wilmington did not play well from the get-go. But under the lights Monday at Alumni Stadium, Wilmington put forth a good enough against a team that had much more speed, skill and experience than them as North Andover came away with a 2-0 victory.

"After that first game against Newburyport, I said wow this could be a longer year than I thought," said Mutchler. "But after this game (Monday night) I saw a lot of progress. The girls put forth a great effort and they improved in a lot of areas.

"I know this is a rebuilding year and I know we are young and inexperienced, but I liked what I saw tonight. We can definitely build on this. I'm not worried about scoring because we have a couple of people who can score."

The top highlight of the game came from Jen Sullivan, the team's goalie. She came up from the JV team halfway through last season, and on Monday she looked like a seasoned veteran coming away with 16 saves, including several times booting out four or five shots at a time. Both goals she gave up were on rebounds or pile ups in front, really nothing she could do.

"Jen played very well," said Mutchler. "The thing this year is she doesn't have the experienced backs in front of her that she had last year so this year she is seeing the ball from places she isn't used to. Once the backs get some more experience and get used to each other, I think we'll be fine."

Twenty minutes into the game, Sullivan made five kick out saves in a row on a big scurry in front of the net, and while she then flopped to the ground to try to kick the ball away, North Andover Jen Sachs was at the right place to poke home a loose ball for what became the game winning tally.

With about ten seconds left in the first half, the Scarlet Knights made it 2-0 as again Liz Day was at the right place to lift up a rebound over Sullivan, who made two initial saves.

The teams played a scoreless second half and Wilmington had two good scoring bids that just fell short. Senior co-captain Emily Olson sent a nice pass to the right side of the net to sophomore forward Cassie Doherty, who just missed the short side of the net with 12 minutes to go in the game.

Shortly thereafter, senior co-captain Celine DeMaggio also sent a nice pass over to Doherty and again the shot came inches away from going on net.

Wilmington's game on Friday which was scheduled to be at home at 7:00 pm against Pentucket has been changed as the two teams changed sites for each game. Wilmington will travel to Pentucket for an afternoon game beginning at 3:45 before coming back home Monday night against Masconomet beginning at 7:00 pm.

Boys soccer trying to add it all up

By JAMIE POTE

During the day, Steve Scanlon is a guidance counselor. But after this past week's games, he might be switching his profession to become a math teacher.

"When you play real tentative with no lack of competitive fire and you add that to poor decision making and poor execution you're in trouble," said Scanlon. "We're young and inexperienced and we did play two very good teams as our schedule is very top heavy, but right now I think the kids are overwhelmed with the speed and intensity at the varsity level and we lack team speed."

Scanlon's team begun their season Friday afternoon at home against Masconomet, as the game was switched from Thursday night because of the wet field conditions. Masco has always been a perennial power in the Cape Ann League and they came away with a 4-0 victory over the 'Cats.

"We were severely over-matched by Masco," said Scanlon. "I thought they were better than they were a year ago, and they even played us without their best player. We tried to play behind the ball and counter attack, but 13 minutes into the game we gave up a goal and you just can't do that playing that style.

"We started to play a little better after giving up that goal. We started to settle down a bit, but then we gave up another goal with five minutes to go in the half which really hurt. But on the goal, their kid was able to corral the ball, chest trap it, and then turn and fire the ball. At some point you have to shut him down - you can't give him all that time with the ball and not challenge him at all."

After that Scanlon said that he then tried to push more attackers up to see if the 'Cats could crack Masco's defense, but the Chieftains countered with two more goals in the second half.

"We never threatened offensively," said Scanlon. "We took three shots and we landed one on net. We were just over-matched."

On Monday, Wilmington traveled to Lynnfield and came back with a 3-0 defeat to fall 0-2 on the young season.

"The first half we played real tentative and they were playing very aggressive," said Scanlon. "We gave up a goal on a mistake in our own end, and their kid stole the ball away from us at the '18, walked in and blasted one home. That set the tone in the first half. We registered one shot on net in the entire first half."

In the second half, Wilmington played much better, although the Pioneers added two more goals to put the game away.

"We played much better and we had seven shots on net in the second half," said Scanlon. "But 15 minutes into it, we gave up a goal off a corner kick on an uncontested shot. The kid was unmarked and all alone and he did what any high school kid would do, he headed it in. He was not even challenged at all."

"We went on to get a couple of scoring opportunities but we just misexecute - we shanked a lot of the shots. We moved the ball nice a couple of times, but either the penetrating pass was not enough or be too much. We are just making poor decisions. Part of it is the strength of the opponents, so we'll see if it gets better."

Wilmington travels to Tewksbury Saturday morning for a 10:00 am non-league contest at the John Wynn Middle School.

Golf team tops Newburyport, 114-104

By PAUL HAYES
Sports Correspondent

Following a pair of away matches, the Wilmington High golf team looks to shake the road dust from their spikes. The Wildcats return home this week undefeated and looking forward to some home field advantage of their own.

Wilmington racked up their second win on foreign soil Tuesday, topping Cape Ann League rival Newburyport 114-104 at Rowley Country Club.

It was their second road win to start the year, and proved that the junior and senior heavy Wilmington team has the grit to win away from the confines of their home links at Hillview Golf Course in North Reading.

Senior captain Kevin Velardo led the way for Wilmington, shooting the low round with an even par 36, and tallied 28 points under the Cape Ann League quote point scoring system.

Performing up to expectations, Velardo has started the year with a pair of strong matches. In the season opener against Hamilton-Wenham at Myopia Golf Course, Velardo finished one under par.

Other top performers against Newburyport were junior Zach Ungvarsky, scoring 21 quota points; sophomore Jason Evans, 18 quota points; and junior Jeff Youngclaus, 17 quota points.

Coach Al Fessenden said the key to victory over Newburyport was players stepping up. He pointed to Evans and Youngclaus as two players who have met the challenge of improving their golf games this season. However, Fessenden said the team has not played to the best of their ability yet during this young season.

"Some of the kids in the order have really stepped up," said Fessenden. "But I'm still looking for the kids to fulfill their potential."

In the season opener Wilmington defeated Hamilton-Wenham, 128-121, on Thursday. The season was supposed to open at Triton on Wednesday, Sept. 8 but the match was rescheduled due to rain.

Fessenden said opening the season with a pair of wins was a positive development, and expects the team will play even better once they return to their home course and wield their home course advantage.

"I think half of the team is playing up to expectations, and the other half isn't," said Fessenden. "I hope they will all (play to expectations) over the next three matches at home."

Fessenden said when a team is at home its players are able to think less about course layout and yardage and focus more on their swing.

"At our course you can just bang it and go," Fessenden said.

Wilmington will begin their homestand with a match against a young and improving Manchester squad on Thursday, followed by matches against Amesbury on Tuesday and Pentucket Regional on Wednesday, Sept. 22.

"It's been a nice start to the season," said Fessenden. "Hopefully with the next three matches at home we can get some consistency going through the lineup."

WHS Girls Soccer Notebook 'Cats shaping up in their own end

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

A huge reason why the Wilmington High girls soccer team posted 17 shut outs over the last two seasons was the play of Rachele See, the team's sweeper. Voted as the Cape Ann League's MVP last year, while she finished second in the voting the year before, See graduated along with a handful of other talented defenders.

Two games into this season, Wilmington has given up four goals in their one win over Masco and one loss over the defending Division 3 state champion Lynnfield Pioneers. Head coach Sue Hendee said thus far the defensive play has been OK.

"The defense is new," she said. "I have just one returner back from last year and they've been working hard on getting it together and that's going to come. Individually they've been doing alright but as a group we have to work on things. We are getting mixed up, but part of it is they have to get the varsity experience to be able to have the presence of mind to be able to communicate with each other and react to different situations.

"A lot of times they turn and look at me asking 'what should I do', but they have to learn that by playing the game and making decisions on the fly. It'll come with experience."

A good impression

One defender Hendee said has really strived in the first two games is sophomore Samantha Canning, who played varsity last year for Arlington Catholic before deciding to transfer to WHS.

"Sam Canning has been outstanding in both of our games as a new player," said Hendee. "She has varsity experience playing last year for Arlington Catholic and she saved a lot for us (on Monday)."

Football team gets its revenge

By LOUIE CIMAGLIA

It was exactly 300 days ago the last time the Wilmington High School football team faced the Generals of Hamilton-Wenham. On that frostbitten day in November the Wildcats came up one yard short of a trip to the playoffs for the first time since 1976.

This time around, on Friday night, the Wildcats wanted some revenge. And they got it.

Right from the opening whistle the feeling was known that the Wildcats were going to explode out of the gate. And they did. This is a different team from that of a year ago.

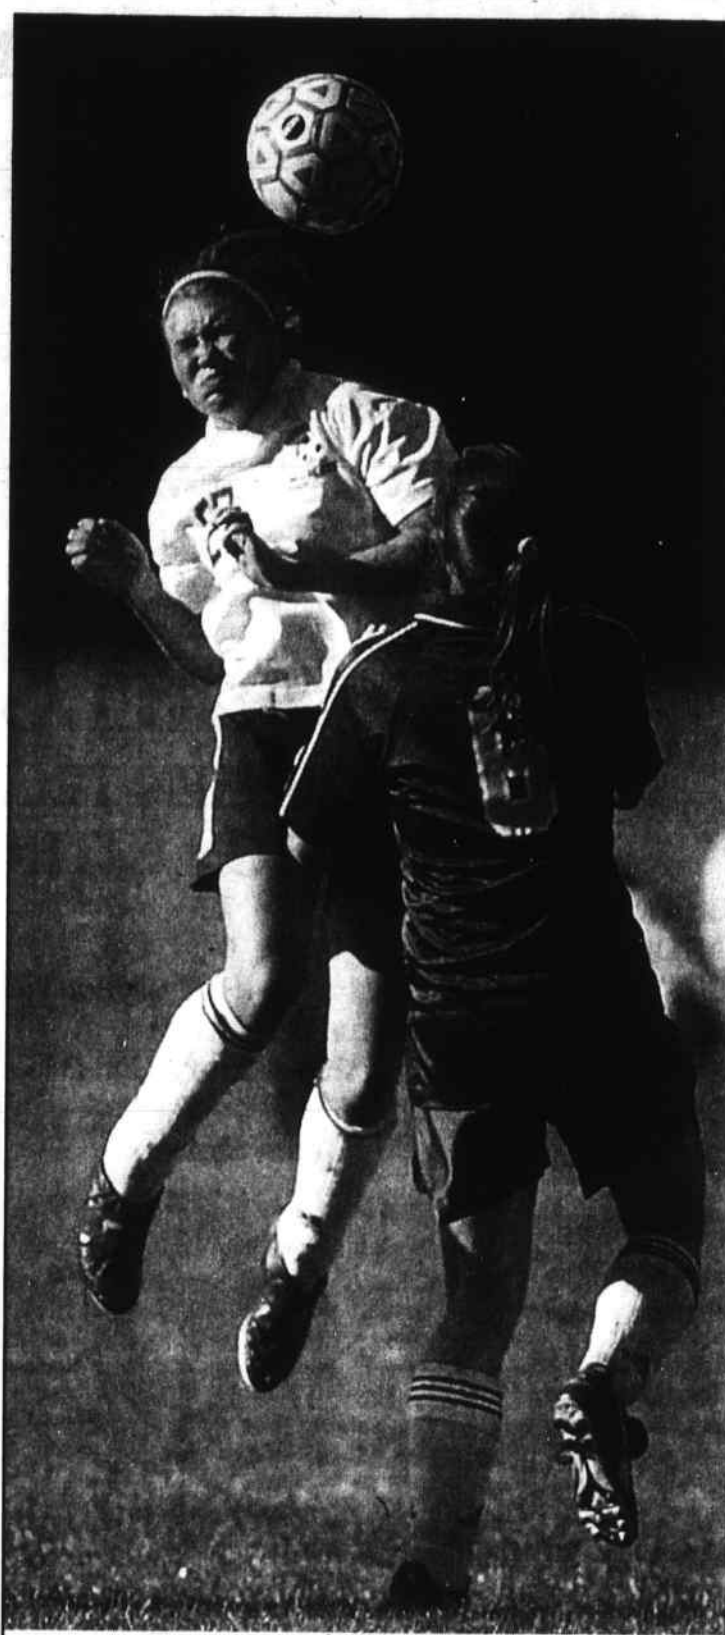

This year's team is smaller, quicker and more aggressive. Lots of talent was lost with the graduation of Sean Godding, Dave DeMango, Derek Trueria, Kenny Luongo and Charlie Lojek.

The youth of this team actually turns out to be a potential strength. If the young core of this team can stay healthy, the Wildcats could be a force to be reckoned with for the next few years.

Believe it or not, the Wildcats can improve after their 28-14 thrashing of the Generals. The 'Cats did have many crucial penalties early in the game that kept the Generals in the hunt. Holding calls hurt the 'Cats but the stifling Wilmington defense didn't give ground.

The secondary did a good job of stopping the Hamilton-Wenham passing attack. And the Generals had an even harder time gaining yards on the ground.

The defensive line and line-backer corps performed very well. They seemed to feed off

Platoon of the goalies

Through both games thus far, Hendee has split times between the two goalies, senior Alicia Braid and junior Ashley Poirier. The coach said most likely that game plan will continue.

"(I) Probably (will continue to rotate them). I want Ashley to get as much playing time as she can get," said Hendee.

The coach said that both of them however, need to polish up on a few things but the coach said some of that is because the team is so big.

"I'd like to see them get a little more aggressive off their line," said Hendee. "We've been trying to work on that. With ten new players on the team there's been things that we have needed to work on but haven't been able to yet like positioning and the goalkeepers is a good example of what I have been neglecting.

"Part of that is I know both of them have varsity experience and I'm trying to work with the other girls. Twenty-six kids is an awfully big family."

The Wildcats had an exceptional night running the ball in their 28-14 win over Hamilton-Wenham on Friday night, piling up 292 yards on the ground. The running backs and quarterback Joe Herra were outstanding, but leading the way for was a patchwork offensive line for the Wildcats which played above all expectations.

Minus starters Nick Hogan and Mike Fields, Wildcat coach Bob Almeida was forced to mix and match his line for this game. Captain Brennan Jones, normally a tight end, moved to left tackle and he was joined on the line by Matthew Marden, Nick Manent, Michael Thibault and Ryan Quigley.

The outstanding play of the line was never more evident than on a second quarter drive in which they piled up 74 yards on the ground, most of it right up the middle. Wilmington coach Bob Almeida was impressed with the play of his line on the drive, especially considering the average size of his line was greatly diminished with the losses of Fields and Hogan, who stand in at 285 and 275 pounds respectively.

"They did a nice job opening some holes on that drive," Almeida said. "We can't make a living out of running up the middle averaging 175 pounds across the line. We have to be balanced."

The average fan watching the game often misses what goes on in the trenches throughout the game, but Almeida and his coaching staff were well aware of the job the men up front were doing.

"The line was fighting hard the whole game," Almeida said. "The kids played their hearts out."

Herra off to a great start

Junior quarterback Joe Herra had a fine season last year and expectations were high for him going into this season. If the first game is any barometer, Herra most certainly will not disappoint Wildcat fans looking for him to be even better this year. Herra accounted for 301 combined yards, with 147 yards rushing and another 154 and three touchdowns through the air.

"Herra made some incredible plays," Almeida said. "On top of having a great arm he is also very elusive running the ball."

Herra's multiple talents would make any coach thrilled to have him guiding their offense and Almeida is certainly no exception. In fact, Almeida has been able to expand his offensive game plan with Herra under center.

"He's just a great player," Almeida said. "We've always been a running team, but for us right now Herra is about as good a weapon as you could hope to have. We're getting to throw the ball more and we're taking advantage of that."

No revenge for Almeida

Heading into the game on Friday, most Wildcat fans, and probably many of the returning players had revenge on their minds when they thought of Hamilton-Wenham. This was after all, the team that kept the Wildcats from qualifying for post season with a 21-20 win in the second to last game of last season when Wilmington came up short on a two-point conversion attempt with 18 seconds left in the game.

But for Almeida there were no thoughts of getting back at the Generals for last year's game. He was too busy getting ready for this year to worry about games in the past.

"I don't really think of it like that," Almeida said. "That was last year and they just made a great play on us at the end of the game. Two teams played very hard tonight, but I don't view it as revenge."

Amesbury up next

Wilmington will be on the road for its next two games, including a battle Friday night against Amesbury. The Fighting Indians have struggled over the past few years, and were defeated last Friday night by Masconomet, 20-8. The game was scoreless at the half until Masco broke it open scoring one its first drive of the third quarter, before adding two more scores.

Amesbury cut the lead to 20-8 when junior quarterback EJ Flanagan scored on a QB sneak from the 1 yard line.

After Friday's contest against Amesbury, Wilmington will travel to Lawrence Stadium to take on the Lancers. It'll be the first time since 1994 that the 'Cats will play Lawrence. Wilmington left the Merrimack Valley Conference after the spring of 1995, and Lawrence left the MVC several years ago playing an independent schedule. Before the start of this season, Lawrence was voted into the Cape Ann League for football only.

Wilmington High junior Mike Herra had a sensational game for the Wildcats both offensively and defensively in their 28-14 win on Friday night. Herra gets checked out by trainer Bill Martin during the game.

Shawsheen Tech Boys and Girls Soccer teams round-up

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

The Shawsheen Tech girls soccer team is off to an impressive start as they begin defense of their Commonwealth Athletic Conference championship. The Lady Rams finished their first week of the season with a 3-1 record (2-0 in the CAC), and did it with contributions from both seasoned veteran as well as newcomers.

Shawsheen's most recent game was a 2-1 road victory over CAC rival Presentation of Mary Academy (PMA). The Lady Rams got goals from forwards, Shannon Proulx, a senior from Tewksbury and Erica Marsh, a junior. Freshman goalkeeper Kim Stockton of Wilmington earned her third victory of the season, making 10 saves.

The score was deadlocked at 0-0 at the half, but Proulx opened the scoring for the Lady Rams early in the second half, and Marsh followed soon thereafter before PMA scored late in the game to pull within one.

"I felt like we outplayed them for the most part even in the first half," coach Jack Viveiros said. "The ball was in their end for the most part, and I felt like it was just a matter of time before we would score."

Shawsheen had lost their previous game, a non-league clash with Pope John on Saturday, by a score of 3-0. Prior to that, they had downed CAC rival Greater Lowell last Friday by a score of 4-1.

Against Greater Lowell, the Lady Rams were tied 1-1 at the end of the first half, but second half goals by Ashley Robar, Proulx and Marsh broke the game open. Proulx and Marsh lead the team with three goals each.

"It's great to have people like that to go to when you need to,"

Viveiros said. "Shannon has a rocket foot from the left side. She scored a goal against Greater Lowell on a shot that no one could have stopped."

Proulx and Marsh are clearly the primary offensive weapons for the Lady Rams, but they are not the only players Viveiros can count on. Freshmen like Katie Giordano and Jessica Labrecque, along with Tewksbury's Jamie Chase have all either scored or assisted on goals already this season.

"We're balanced for a change which is nice," Viveiros said. "You don't expect a freshman to score for you right away or for a fullback to score on a long shot the way Ashley did, but that's what we are getting right now."

The freshmen class, including Stockton in net has been a very pleasant surprise for Shawsheen. Viveiros knew it would not be easy to replace last year's goalie Heather Thomas, but Stockton, along with fellow Wilmington native Allie Ogden seem ready to do just that.

"Allie is getting her experience at the JV level and Kim has stepped right in to the varsity and is doing very well," Viveiros said. "She is replacing a league MVP in Heather which is not easy to do."

The Lady Rams are obviously off to a great start, but Viveiros feels that things could be even better as the season goes on.

"Right now we are doing OK, but we still have to get that team chemistry and build on that. Sometimes it can be tough integrating new players with veteran players," Viveiros said. "It was the same last year, but at one point it all of a sudden clicked and we just went from there."

Boys Soccer

The boys soccer team has also gotten off to a good start at Shawsheen, posting a 2-1 record in their first three games. They did hit a bump in the road on Monday afternoon in a home game against Greater Lowell where they suffered an 8-4 defeat, but in the loss, where the Rams trailed just 3-2 at the half, coach Dick Barris did see some positives from his CAC Lower Division Rams against the Upper Division Gryphons.

"It was 3-2 at the half, and actually could have been 2-2 because they were offside on one score," Barris said. "One of our goals coming into the season was to compete against the upper division teams, and even though it was not what we wanted at the finish it was an improvement."

And despite the loss, the fact remains that the Rams are 2-0 in their all important lower division games, with the wins coming by scores of 2-0 over Whittier last Wednesday and 4-0 over Minuteman on Friday. Both games were on the road.

"I was pleased to get out of Whittier with a win. That's a tough place to play," Barris said. "I wasn't sure how well we played in that game, but I saw that they tied Northeast the other day, so maybe we were better than I thought."

Jim DaSilva and Tewksbury's Chris Bradley were the goal scorers for the Rams, with Bradley scoring the first goal of the game midway through the first half and DaSilva adding the insurance goal midway through the second half. Wilmington's John Semonian assisted on DaSilva's goal.

Tewksbury's Rich Fantasia made 12 saves to earn the shutout.

Against Minuteman the Rams struggled in the first half before scoring three goals in the first 6:16 of the second half. Scoring for the Rams in that stretch were Tewksbury's Dan Reed and Kyle Patrie along with Wilmington's Charlie Broussard. Patrie, who scored the final goal at the 6:16 mark, also tallied the first goal of the game for the Rams in the first half.

"I was not happy with the way we played in the first half, but I thought we played very well in the second half," Barris said.

Patrie currently leads the team with five goals on the young season after tallying a hat trick Monday's loss to Greater Lowell. Patrie led the team in scoring last season and Barris has seen his star pick up right where he left off.

"Kyle is the one player on our where you can really say he is our goal scorer. He is the one guy who can beat his opponent one on one," Barris said. "Our team success will certainly lie on how well he does."

Patrie remains the star, but others have stepped up as well including Semonian, who continues to impress Barris with his work ethic.

"I can't say enough about John. He's got limited soccer skills, but he does it simply by hustle," Barris said. "He's a joy to coach. He runs all over the field and works hard and when I take him out he is on the sideline rooting and cheering for the other guys. I am really happy he has had some success."

Fantasia has also been very successful in the early going this season, beginning to revert back to the form of his freshman year as Barris had hoped.

"Even in the 8-4 loss he came up with some big saves. By the score, it looks like he did not play well, but in fact he did. He just faced too many 3-on-1's," Barris said. "I have been very happy with his play so far."

children. His three older sisters were all graduates and student-athletes at Tewksbury High School. His sister Kerry played soccer and then came back for a season several years ago as the JV girls soccer coach. Lauren played basketball and ran cross country.

And Lindsay, who graduated this past spring, was voted the school's Co-Female Athlete of the Year after playing volleyball, basketball and softball.

As for Patrick, he gets his hockey traits from his father, Tom, who grew up in Charlestown and is friendly with several members of the 1980 US Olympic team. He went to the University of Pennsylvania to play hockey and after his first two seasons, the program closed. He then transferred to the University of Vermont and is enshrined into its Hockey Hall of Fame.

Tom was a centerman, whereas his son is a rugged 6-foot-2, 185-pound defenseman.

Patrick Cullity was asked what legendary BU Coach Jack Parker and associate coach David Quinn liked about him both as a person and as a hockey player. Cullity said that it helped that he had a mutual friend who helped him out a bit, however, the coaching staff seemed to have a clear inkling of what type of caliber person they are getting.

"(The mutual friend) told them what type of kid I am and the type of attitude I have and that background information helped a lot," said Cullity. "They told me that they like that I see the whole ice, and they like my skating ability."

Cullity didn't spend much time in the Tewksbury youth skating system, not its schools. He played youth hockey with his last season as a member of the Pee Wee A's before switching over to the Valley Junior Warriors, and then the Middlesex Islanders. There he was a member of a three-time league champions, who also won the World Championship in Quebec in front of 15,000 fans in 2001.

After that he attended Brooks Academy in North Andover and when his head coach Alex Moody left there for another job at the Berkshire Academy, Cullity went with him. Last year Cullity registered five goals and added 16 assists as the team's go-to player on the power play.

Cullity said it was Moody, who really got his foot in the door when it comes to his future.

"Switching schools to be with him was the best decision I made," said Cullity. "He really helped me out."

Moody was able to help Cullity play for the Select 17 Festival in St. Cloud, Minnesota this past summer, and that's when the interest began. Cullity took visits to many Hockey East Schools, including UNH, UMass, BC and Providence before settling in on BU.

"I never thought I'd get interest from those schools," he said. "It was fun going to all of those schools, and I guess the National Festival really helped me out. I had a solid tournament but I ended up dislocating my shoulder and I played throughout it with a brace on my shoulder."

"After that I had heard a lot of schools were in the hunt, and BU was just an easy decision. I've grown up here, I'll be playing in a City I love and I know it'll be a fun team to play for."

Wildcat football team gets its revenge

the energy of the crowd.

There were many bright spots in the 'Cats victory. Stephen Downs had a fantastic opener racking up yards and first downs on the offensive side and played just as well defensively. Joe Mayo had a great receiving touchdown as the clock expired at the half. He caught the ball at the seven-yard line and carried several Hamilton-Wenham defenders en route to the end zone.

Another top performer was Sean Murphy who played a steady defensive end while hauling in a few balls from Joe Herra, including the first score of the game.

Of course, the Wildcats depended on their captains for leadership. Team Captain Mike Thibault plays like he always does on the line: full throttle. Robbie Gillis ran the ball tremendously well and played awesome defense from his linebacker position. Brian Giamberdino ran the ball effectively as well. Brennan Jones made some nice plays on special teams as well as on the defensive line.

Several other players also pitched in for the cause. Rich Barry carried the ball effectively in the second half as well as Shawn Fahey. And on Monday afternoon the JV squad stomped Hamilton-Wenham, 28-0.

Overall, the Wildcats looked like a well-oiled machine. If they keep up their ferocious play it could be a year even better than last. The seniors are gone from last year's nine win season, but new players have stepped up to fill their shoes. This year's team has the heart to be great. And heart goes a long way.

Rams football team walks over AC in opener

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

LEXINGTON — Throughout the preseason, Shawsheen Tech football coach Al Costabile had talked about the importance of getting off to a good start this season. It was something that had eluded the Rams the past two seasons when they had fallen to Arlington Catholic in each of their last two season openers.

The Rams made sure it would not be three straight losing starts on Sunday afternoon, downing the Cougars by a score of 21-6 in Lexington. The game was played at Minuteman Regional's home field due to the unavailability of Arlington Catholic's home field. The Rams were led by junior running back Kyle Marzeoti, who ran for 192 yards and a pair of touchdowns, as well as an opportunistic defense which came up with three interceptions.

The Rams were in control throughout the game, leading by scores of 7-0 at the end of one quarter and 14-6 at the half before pulling away in the third quarter on Marzeoti's second touchdown run of the game.

Shawsheen coach Al Costabile was pleased to see his team turn around their recent season opening trend with Sunday's victory.

"There's a big difference between 1-0 and 0-1," Costabile said. "It's great to get off to a good start. The kids did a great job for four quarters, and came up with a couple of big turnovers when we needed them."

As Costabile said, the Rams played well throughout the game, and they got off to a fine start to take the lead midway through the first quarter when Marzeoti, burst through the middle of the line and then raced past the Cougar secondary for a 51-yard touchdown run to make the score 7-0 with 3:25 left in the quarter after the first of three Pat Fullerton extra point kicks.

"Kyle had a great game," Costabile said. "I told him if he gained 150 yards today I knew we would win and he even surpassed that. He has come back this year even stronger and with an unrelenting work ethic."

Arlington Catholic came right back on their next possession, putting together an eight play 55 yard drive capped off by a six yard touchdown run by Nick Bates on the first play of the second quarter. The extra point kick failed and the Rams maintained the lead at 7-6.

Shawsheen extended their lead in the closing seconds of the first half on a 25-yard touchdown pass from senior quarterback Chris Holak of Tewksbury to junior wide receiver Brandon McCarthy. McCarthy hauled in the pass from Holak at about the ten yard line and he eluded tacklers the rest of the way to take the ball into the end zone with 12 seconds left in the half to make the score 14-6.

It originally looked as if McCarthy would step out of bounds to preserve the clock. The Cougar defenders may very well have thought the same, as they seemed stunned by his efforts to get into the end zone and they could not stop him as he dove the last couple of yard to paydirt.

"McCarthy made a great effort," Costabile said. "He just kept those legs moving and going until he got into the end zone."

The pass to McCarthy was the third consecutive completion for Holak, who would finish the day with 91 yards through the air. The signal caller from Tewksbury took over as the starting quarterback midway through last season, but Sunday was his first time opening the season as the true leader of the offense. Costabile felt that he responded well to the challenge.

"He was very poised," Costabile said. "He took a hit early in the game and we thought he might have broken his nose. But he stayed in there and threw some really nice passes."

The Rams put the game out of reach on their first possession of the third quarter. After an interception by McCarthy, who had a great game on both sides of the ball, the Rams drove 44 yards in seven plays and capped the drive with a two yard touchdown run by Marzeoti with 4:19 left in the quarter.

Arlington Catholic threatened on several occasions to get back on the scoreboard throughout the game, but the Ram defense came through time and again. Holak also contributed on defense with an interception, as did fellow Tewksbury native Ken Aalerud.

The Rams also maintained their lead thanks to a clock killing drive at the start of the fourth quarter. Taking over possession with 20 seconds left in the third quarter, the Rams, behind the strong running of Marzeoti, Aalerud and Fullerton brought the clock all the way down to five minutes remaining, forcing the Cougars into a desperation offense.

Rams Football Team Notebook

With a running back like Kyle Marzeoti in the backfield, Shawsheen is likely to put up some great rushing numbers this season. But Marzeoti and the rest of the backs will go only as far as the offensive line will take them, as will quarterback Chris Holak and the passing game.

If the season opener against Arlington Catholic was any indication the Rams appear to be in very good shape on the line.

Center Hank Chase of Tewksbury and right tackle Jared Nims of Wilmington, along with right guard Ron Raymond, left guard John McLaughlin and left tackle Rich Doane opened up plenty of holes for Marzeoti to run through, and also protected Holak very well, allowing him to throw for 91 yards and a touchdown on the day.

"The offensive line played great," Shawsheen coach Al Costabile said. "They played tough and stayed after it for four quarters."

AC a great rivalry

It's become a tradition now for Shawsheen Tech and Arlington Catholic to open the season against each other, and it is a tradition that Costabile hopes will continue for years to come. Costabile became familiar with the Cougars while coaching Bishop Fenwick of the Catholic Central League, and when he moved to Shawsheen he continued his relationship with AC coach Serge Clivio.

Opening the season against the Cougars seems only natural to Costabile.

"It's a great tradition and it's a nice fit for us. We are close geographically and are in the same division," Costabile said. "Also, the kids from both teams go to the same football camp where coaches from both teams work so we have developed a rapport with each other's players."

The camp experiences as well as Costabile's previous relationship with Clivio also seem to translate into the action on the field.

"The staffs respect each other so you don't see any cheap play by either team," Costabile said. "You might see a couple of holds and things like that, but nothing cheap, and that's the way the game should be played."

Millis up next

The Rams will take on another non-league opponent, hosting Millis of the Tri-Valley League. The Rams fell to the Mohawks in Millis last season by a score of 21-13, also in the second game of the season. It was a game where Costabile did not think his team played as well as they could have, but were also victimized somewhat by circumstances beyond their control.

"I felt we had a chance to win that game, but we shot ourselves in the foot a little," Costabile said. "We also had a tough holding penalty near the end of the game when it looked like we scored a touchdown with about 25 seconds left."

Millis finished last season with just a 2-9 record, but that was highly uncharacteristic of the team's that coach Dave Sperandio usually fields. Even with last year's poor record, Sperandio sports a 72-30 career record in his 10 years at Millis High. Costabile will be looking for a much more typical Millis team this season.

"They are a strong team. They are very strong along both their offensive and defensive lines," Costabile said. "Offensively they have some good sized kids who get off the ball fast. We will have to play real well up front to stay in this game."

Senior tailback Matt Reardon will likely be the primary ball carrier and he will do so behind an experienced offensive line that includes the Mohawk co-captains, junior Connor Hogan and senior Chris Ward.

"From tackle to tackle they are very strong. They had a lot of success against us last year running with a lead fullback and also with the fullback dive," Costabile said. "They come right at you and dare you to stop them with their power game."

Squirt A's open hockey season at home against Woburn

The Wilmington Wildcat Squirt A's opened their season at home with a strong effort on Saturday against a powerful Woburn team. Wilmington's Squirt A team is a young team with exceptional speed up and down its lineup. This year's team features a nice blend of experience and youth with six of its players making the leap from last year's Mite A's. Early indications are that this team should be an extremely exciting team to watch as it is comprised of unselfish, hard working, talented players.

The Squirt A's also demonstrated that they will be a difficult team to face this year when they battled one of the division's strongest teams in a close, hard fought game that ended in a 4-2 defeat.

Brendan McDonough started Wilmington's attack with a nice break-in on Woburn's net with a quick wrist shot that was knocked down by the Woburn goaltender. Brian Pickett followed with a nice backhand off the rebound that Woburn was able to stop and smother. Soon after, Wilmington went on its first power play of the season after Zach Blanch was tripped up at center ice by a Woburn defender.

Seconds after Woburn's penalty was up, a Woburn forward was able to score the game's first goal with nine minutes left in the first period after receiving a quick pass and making a nice individual effort up the middle of the ice by splitting Wilmington's two defenders and lifting a shot just beyond the reach of goalie Drew Foley's outstretched glove. Woburn followed up this goal with several more shots and drives to the net but Drew Foley made several great saves to keep the score at 1-0.

With four minutes remaining in the first period, Wilmington went back on the attack with Cam Owens firing a shot from the left slot through Woburn's crease which was followed soon after by another shot by defenseman Cam Collins who stepped in from the point and whistled a hard wrist shot in on the Woburn goalie. Before this shift would be over, Cam Owens would also make a steal and get off another tough shot on net between two Woburn defenders.

With just under three minutes left in the first period, Woburn came back strong after Wilmington's offensive efforts and converted the game's second goal when their right wing made a strong move around the outside by muscling in close to the net and flipping the puck over the shoulder of Drew Foley. Woburn's attack did not end here as it put numerous shots on net in the final two minutes of the period only to be denied by Foley who kept the score at 2-0 after one period of play.

The second period of play continued much like the first. Wilmington made several nice plays on offense as Jay Rossetti, Justin Ferreira, Cam Owens, Zach Blanch and Dylan Dinatale made several crisp passes to each other that led to several Wilmington scoring opportunities that the Woburn goalie was unfortunately able to defend.

On defense, Paul Barbaro, Chris Newton, Cam Collins and Andy Camillieri continued to battle Woburn's aggressive offensive unit and Drew Foley made some spectacular saves holding Woburn scoreless in the period until 4:58 remained when Woburn connected on a perfect pass to a streaking wing who was able to increase Woburn's lead to 3-0.

The horn sounded to end the second period with Woburn leading 3-0 just as Chris Newton fed a streaking Jackie Mulrennan in alone over the Woburn blue line. While time expired before Jackie could get off a shot, it would prove to be a prelude to things to come.

With 11:22 left in the third period, Wilmington was able to get on the scoreboard as Cam Collins fed a streaking Cam Owens who was able to drive in and sneak a shot under the pads of Woburn's goalie for Wilmington's first goal of the season. As the relentless pace of the game continued, Wilmington was able to hold off several Woburn attempts and was able to make it a 3-2 game with 9:13 remaining when Jackie Mulrennan made a nice pass to Justin Ferreira who made a quick move to the net and rifled a shot past the Woburn goaltender.

At this point, the intensity of the game increased further with battles for the puck taking place all over the ice. Both teams made nice plays in their defensive zones, keeping the score at 3-2, until 4:50 remained when a Woburn player, who was camped out in front of Wilmington's net, was able to knock one home for Woburn's fourth goal of the game.

With 1:35 remaining in the game, Wilmington pulled their goalie and added another offensive player in hopes of scoring quickly before time expired. With an empty Wilmington net, Woburn took control of the puck in Wilmington's end of the ice in a frantic finish to the game that saw Wilmington's defensemen make several saves in front of their own net while another shot hit the post before Wilmington could regain control of the puck.

With ten seconds remaining and a face off in its own end, Drew Foley returned to the Wilmington net where the game ended with Woburn winning 4-2.

While the team's first game ended in defeat, there are many encouraging things about the Wilmington Squirt A team to look forward to this year. Drew Foley proved to be spectacular in net, the defense played strong and the offense was quick, unselfish and tireless.

The team's sponsor, Powershot Utility Construction Services, would be proud of the team's effort in their first game of the season.

Squirt B's open season

The Wilmington Squirt B team played their first game of the season this past Sunday against Burlington.

It didn't take long to find their groove with Brendon Healy scoring first, assisted by Ryan Kennedy and Conor Ryan. Burlington came back and scored, but it would prove to be their only goal. Nolan Gaffey scored off of a nice pass from Dan Luise. Ryan Kennedy scored, assisted by Eric Masiello and Brendon Healy to end the first period.

Chris Piscatelli scored assisted by Dan Keane and Brendon Healy, J.B. Thompson scored next, assisted by Chris Piscatelli and Dan Keane. Ryan Kennedy started the third period scoring with a nice feed from Eric Masiello and Conor Ryan scored assisted by Jeffrey Favuzza and Brendon Healy.

Ryan Kennedy completed his hat trick scoring his third goal assisted by Conor Ryan and Brendon Healy. Conor Ryan scored his second goal assisted by Healy and Kennedy. Dan Luise scored, assisted by Keane and Piscatelli and Chris Piscatelli scored his second goal assisted by Luise and Gaffey to end Wilmington's scoring for the day!

Matt Curran played excellent in goal for the Wildcats. This win was a total team effort in which every player was involved and we will continue to see many great wins as they continue to work together unselfishly as a team.

Travel soccer teams put forth great efforts

Welcome to September. The time of year when adults step back and children step up; Parents putting their child on the school bus for the very first time, children walking through Middle School or High School doors for the first time, kids off to college for their freshman year. Yes September a time for changes and challenges for many children.

On the Shawsheen soccer field Saturday morning there were many changes for the GU12-3 team. First, two of their stronger players, (one also an excellent keeper) were selected for the GU12-1 team over the summer. Second, three new players were added to their roster. The team was moved up from Division three to Division two.

Many changes. Many challenges. Plenty of opportunities for children to step up. Boy did they ever!

Not long after the game vs. Lowell got underway left forward Laney Sartoris drove to the net and fed the ball to center forward Heather Kealos who put a shot past the keeper for our first goal of the season. Welcome to the team Laney.

Lowell had some rushes and good chances but stonewall keeper Kelly Duffy was there to smother any loose ball and feed it up to her teammates. Meanwhile by spreading the team and moving the ball around Wilmington was able to frustrate Lowell.

Stopper Chelsey Westerberg

fed the ball up to mid fielder Jenny Garrard who passed wide to mid fielder Lauren Cole and Lauren sent a nice pass up to left forward Fiona Gately for a shot that went just wide.

Lowell started the second half with the ball and drove right up the middle of the field with it, but their scoring bid was shut down by superb second half keeper Meaghan Souza.

The girls were getting a little beat up by a very physical and frustrated Lowell team, but they kept working hard. A great example is Gina Ameral. Gina took a kick from the keeper, controlled the ball, got by a defender who was all over her and blasted a shot past the keeper.

Wilmington would not let up. Midfielder Kelly Duffy sent a nice pass up to forward Haley Robarge and Haley laid a nice pass over to Heather Kealos who buried her second goal of the game! Lowell tried to put pressure on, but stopper Elizabeth Jaeschke, defender Kelly Flaherty and sweeper Samantha Reed made it difficult for them to find a shooting lane.

On the offensive side mid fielder Kristen Keller, with her excellent ball skills and strong foot, kept feeding the ball up to her streaking forwards.

Alyssa Fiorentino did a super job beating one sometimes two Lowell defenders with her fancy foot work Courtney See was another force that Lowell had to reckon with. Courtney broke in a couple of times for some good scoring chances. Kaitlyn Maguire broke in twice but was unable to get a good shot off. She did the next best thing. She fed a nice pass out to a wide open Jenni Garrard and Jenni buried the ball with a nice left footed shot.

Excellent work girls! Tremendous team effort!

Under 10A girls take on Reading

This past Saturday, the travel soccer season opened and the weather couldn't have been better. The Wildcats hosted the girls from Reading and they welcomed them with a fast paced aggressive attack.

Leading Wilmington's charge, was Taylor O'Byrne and Michelle Woods playing strikers and Kristen Tavares playing midfielder. Behind that offense, Emma Barrasso and Emily Colisimo put up a defensive wall in front of Holly Niemiec in goal.

Wilmington carried the play throughout the first half manufacturing numerous goal scoring chances, while the Emma and Emily kept most of Reading's attacks well away from Holly. Late in the first half Michelle rushed up the left side with a feed from Kristen and scored with a kick that deflected off one of Reading's players.

The next line of Alliy Gemellaro and Caitlyn Cheney as strikers, with Lauren McKenna playing midfielder, kept the opponents from starting an organized attack. On defense Gianna Tummino and Jacqueline Kennedy steered most shots away from Holly.

In the second half Lauren replaced Holly in net and the Wildcats kept the pressure up. Midway through the half Taylor took a pass from Holly and blasted a high kick into the corner of the net to put Wilmington up 2-0.

The Wildcats went into defensive mode and ended the game with a 2-0 shutout, to start the season off on a high note. Thanks to both teams for providing an exciting game.

Under 12B girls

travel for first game

The Wilmington Lady Wildcats U-12 B team traveled to Concord-Carlisle for their season opening game. Emily Schuh played the first half as keeper and she denied all attempts by Concord to score. The tough as nails defense consisting of Fullbacks Victoria Beck and Kelly Diccio paired up with sweeper Cara Kusa and strikers Kerry Murphy and Courtney Cavanaugh proved they were up to the task of turning back any bid by Concord of getting close to our net.

The midfield Wildcats Katie Bray, Jessica Griffin, Katie Blanch, Lauren Smith, Mikayla Visconti and Rynne Newhouse moved the ball with skill, dodging Concord players and connecting passes to the Wilmington Forwards Sarah Luz, Kerianne Marino, Kelly McGowan, Michaela D'Ambrosio, Lauren Azevedo and Ashley Walsh who put constant pressure on the Concord keeper with numerous shot on their net. Going into the second half saw the score tied at 0-0, and Kelly Diccio took over between the pipes as keeper.

The Lady Wildcats did what they do best, controlling the play, denying Concord the ability to move the ball and putting more shots on the Concord net, however this game ended in a 0-0 tie. The coaching staff of Steve Luz, Jim Murphy and Tony Azevedo has done an outstanding job of preparing the lady Wildcats for their first game of the season on the big fields.

'Cats take on 'Cats

The fall season started with a great game between the Wilmington Wildcat teams from the new GU-9 division of Wilmington Youth Soccer. The GU9-1 and GU9-2 took the field on opening day on a sunny and clear Saturday with the temperatures just right for the husling members of both teams.

A strong first half by Marina Otis and Nicole Potcner in the backer slots keep the GU9-1 girls off the scoreboard until the eighteen minute mark. The GU9-1 team took the lead on a terrific shot that left keeper Heather Benson almost tipping the ball out of the net.

The teams battled with Adrianna Kippenberger and Juliet McFadden providing strong support in the forward position along with Katherine McFadden and Katherine McKenna supplementing the strong defense for the rest of the first half.

Heather Benson would strike at the nine minute mark of the second half to bring the GU9-2 girls within one goal. With the GU9-1 girls adding a goal at the seven minute mark and again at the fifteen minute mark the game would end with the score 3-1 in favor of the GU9-1 wildcat girls.

Outstanding efforts by Christina D'Ambrosio, Chloe Castellano and Kerry Ryan in the forward slots along with great support from Casey McDonald and Juliet McFadden in the backer position provided several chances for a goal but the strong effort by the GU9-1 goalkeeper would keep the GU9-2 girls off the board.

A great game was enjoyed by the full crowd and both teams received cheers from the fans and families in attendance on the sideline.

Pop Warner Football

Wildcat D Blue team tackle Burlington

On Sunday afternoon, Wilmington Pop Warner's Wildcat D-Blue Football team hosted a contest against the Burlington Patriots. It was a beautiful afternoon and the local boys were anxious to show everyone what they had learned in six weeks of practice.

After receiving the opening kickoff, Wilmington's "basher" offense took the field and proceeded to dive the ball down the field behind the blocking of Mark McConologue, Seth Martin-Wick, Nick D'Amelio, Dan Collins, Alex Girardi, and Robbie Suttera.

Quarterback Matt Ferreira and halfback Johnnie Spears alternated carries down the field before Michael Brent swept eight yards around the right end for the season's first score. The key to the play was tiny Keenan Biralidi delivering a crushing block on an unsuspecting Burlington cornerback.

The Wildcat defense took the field and was just as impressive shutting down the Burlington offense. Vinny Querci, John Baker, Chris Piscatelli, Chris Newton, Alex Danis, Dan Pothier, Tyler Warner, and John Parsons stifled everything that the Patriots had to offer.

At a key moment in the game, Travis Valente made an outstanding open field tackle on the far sideline in front of the Burlington bench to stop a sure first down or possibly more.

The next offensive series for Wilmington included some shotgun formations with Cody Haliday providing crisp snaps back to the quarterback. Pulling guard Matt Costello led Brent on sweep deep into Burlington territory and when it appeared that the drive was ready to stall, spears deftly executed the "Statue of Liberty play" for a 15-yard TD run.

After the defense held Burlington one more time, Ferreira scored on a QB sneak, followed by a conversion plunge by Parsons and the half ended 19-0.

The second half was played to a draw as players got exposure to some new positions. It looks like the practice is paying off for these fine young Wilmington athletes and the coaches look forward to continuing to improve and develop the young "Cat's" football skills.

B team starts out strong

The Junior Midget Wilmington Wildcats B Pop Warner team came sprinting out of the blocks this past Sunday as they trounced the Burlington Patriots 21-0. The Cats sent the message early as exceptional blocking from Andrew Companschi and John Moriarty sprung Steve Souza for a 65-yard kick return.

The Cats turned the ball over on the ensuing drive, but managed to hold the Patriots on defense, get the ball back, and punch it in on a fullback trap to Dominic McCann. Jason Baker, Dan MacKinnon, and Cody Nilsen opened up a huge hole for Thomas Valente to score the PAT.

Wilmington also received extraordinary play from Tristan Anderson, Rob Girard, and Sam Grant on the defensive side of the ball. The Wildcats, outstanding defense, led by John Foss, Nick Danas, and Evan Butters, held Burlington to only one first down all game. The offense held up its end of the bargain as terrific blocking from Matt Cardarelli, Mark Scullari, Nolan Giroux, and Sean Furlong enabled the Cats to drive down for another score from Frank Sorrentino.

It wasn't over yet; the Wildcat offense marched down the field one final time and punched in another six. Great line play from Matt Celeste, Charles Valente Jr. and Greg Fields allowed quarterback Evan Butters enough time to find Thomas Valente in the endzone for the Cats, final touchdown of the day, putting them up 21-0 after the PAT.

That's the way the game would remain, as the Wilmington B-Team earned their first victory, shutting out Burlington 21-0. Congratulations to the coaching staff and its players for an exceptional win on opening day. The coaches and players would like to give a special thanks to all the parents and cheerleaders for their support. The Wilmington B-Team will face off against the Lexington Raiders this upcoming Sunday, September 19 at 12:30 at Robert Palmer Field.

Under 11 A girls fall to Concord-Carlisle, 3-1

The season got underway in Concord for Wilmington's GUILA travel soccer team. The girls had a little preseason play the weekend prior, competing in the Labor Tournament in North Reading. This newly formed team had an impressive 2-0-1 record, narrowly missing out advancing to the semifinals. The experience was great to help this team get ready for the regular season.

In Concord, Maggie Brown started off in net for the Wildcats. She had solid protection from Meaghan Stinson serving as sweeper. In the opening minutes, Concord applied pressure to the Wilmington goal, but the locals settled down and began to move the ball upfield.

Taylor Cushing had the first assist of the season as she sent a perfect cross to forward Jennifer Stewart. Stewart took control and fired off a blast into the net. Midfielders Rachel Grabar and Valerie Belding helped to keep possession for Wilmington. Before the half was over Caitlin McDonough scored with her left foot right into the near corner of the goal. The half ended with a 2-0 lead for the Wildcats.

In the second half, Wilmington continued to play an impressive game. Tremendous hustle from Alexa Brown, Geena DiNuccio and Casey Brown resulted in several scoring opportunities. Lisa Hitchins and Rachel Grabar both narrowly missed connecting on two separate corner kick attempts as the ball was shot just wide of the goal.

Jennifer Stewart widen the lead with a well-placed kick to the low far corner of the Concord goal. Forwards Paige Bennett, Michela Stone and Emily Crannell also worked hard to create pressure in front of the net.

Cristina Wilson took over goal tending duties for the final 15 minutes of the game. Concord continued to attack and Wilson came up with a huge save as a shot was aimed for the top corner of the net. The Wildcats defense was tested in the final minutes, with Melanie Folk and away in the final minutes, but the Wildcats held on to win the game.

Final score Wilmington - 3 and Concord - 1.

Under 11B boys play Medford

The Wilmington Boys Under 11B boys soccer team started off the fall with an impressive win over the always tough Medford Bulldogs on Saturday. The Wildcats started fast and strong and never looked back in this game as Bryan Feindel put the Wildcats on the board first with a fantastic goal assisted by Philip Lentini and Kyle Albanese.

The Wildcats struck again a couple minutes later with a goal by Zachary Anderson on a nice give and go with Andrew Medeiros and Anthony Brown.

The Wildcats defensive diamond of Derek Mayo, Danny D'Arcangelo, Daniel Keane and Zachary Reed kept Medford out of their end of the field for most of the first half.

The Wildcats scored three more times in the first half with two more goals by Zachary Anderson and one by J.R. Rufo.

The second half started out strong again for the Wildcats as J.B. Thompson started the second half scoring for the Wildcats on a nice goal assisted by Adam Burke and Kevin Burke.

The Wildcats worked on defense for much of the second half with some great defensive plays by Ryan Walsh and Derek Mayo.

The Wildcats finished off the Bulldogs with one final goal by Danny D'Arcangelo on a nice feed pass from James Donovan to seal the game.

It was an overall team effort by the Wildcats who take on a very tough Concord-Carlisle team this Saturday at the Shawheen fields.

Pop Warner D White team puts up good fight against Burlington

The Wilmington Pop Warner D white football team hosted Burlington in the season opener at Glen Road this Sunday morning.

Wilmington team captains Jesse Patterson, Sam Silva, Blake Walker and Jacob Long took the field for the coin toss and Wilmington won and elected to receive the opening kick-off.

Justin MacKinnon received the ball and ran for a return of ten yards before being brought down by the Burlington defense. Jesse Patterson started as quarterback for the wildcats with Brendan Ahern providing him with picture perfect snaps. A great run by Jake Flaherty was possible after a path was cleared for him by Nick Colella and Pat Dunn.

After a gain of seven yards the Wildcats looked as if to get a leg up against Burlington with another six-yard sweep run by Steven Reynolds. Unfortunately the wildcats were shut down and a call to the punt team was put in. Nikhil Dixit handled the snap from Brendan and sent the ball into the opponent's end where they were met by a powerful tackle by Brian Priem and Ryan Cocca.

Now it was time for the wildcat defense to show their stuff which they did early on by a set of tackles in the backfield by Sam Borseti and Jacob Long forcing the Burlington offense to a fourth and long situation. The Burlington punt was recovered by Justin where Wilmington saw a seven yard gain.

As luck would have it the time of this possession was cut short by a fumble resulting in Burlington ball. Despite some awesome tackles by Gavin Carta, Blake Walker and Kevin Burke Burlington kept advancing and finally got 6 points to take the lead. The extra point was no good thanks to great teamwork of Tim Penney and Tyler MacInnis.

Wilmington offense came back out with a pitch pass from Jesse to Jake and a gain of 8 yards was possible up the outside lane created by Nick, Ryan Sweeney and Kelly Cassidy. Wilmington once again found themselves at fourth and long and Nikhil and the punt team were called into action. The punt was handled by Burlington and the run ended at their own 45 yard line by a fantastic tackle by Anthony Scuto and Tyler.

With not much time remaining in the half Burlington was making steady gains into the Wilmington zone. Superb defensive plays by Blake and Brian made this no easy feat. However, despite the excellent defensive work Burlington added another six points to their score. Burlington was once again denied the extra point by Sam Silva as the end of the first half came to an end.

Burlington possession at the start of the second half was quickly halted with a fumble created by the forceful attack of Ryan C., Gavin and Tim. Jesse and Brendan now lead their offensive line with the help of Pat, Kelly Cassidy, Kelly Carter and Steven Taylor providing huge holes for their running backs. Great field position came next for the Wildcats after an outstanding 20-yard run by Steven Reynolds. Wilmington could not capitalize on this possession and it's Burlington ball once again. Some show stopping tackles by Nikhil, Jacob, Anthony and Kelly Carter make Burlington scramble for any gains. A potential Burlington breakaway was stopped by the wheels of Jake who brought the opposition down short of the end zone.

Burlington wasn't about to be denied again and snuck across the goal line. As history would have it the extra point is no good. With just seconds remaining in this opening day game the Wilmington Wildcats showed great determination and teamwork however the clock ran out leaving this game with a score of 18-0.

This was a tough match these boys were up against today but they never gave up their drive and desire to succeed. We would like to say "Good Job, Guys You Made Us Proud." Thanks too to the D White cheerleaders, families and friends who came to cheer our team on. Also, thanks to the coaching staff for their time and dedication to this team. Until next week.

Girls Under 10B team battles Melrose

This Saturday the Wilmington girls' U 10B team kicked off their season by traveling to Melrose and what a kick it was. The first half saw Jackie Parece, Kelsey Mangan and Anna Siegel in for offense. Wilmington kicked off and for an explosive first half.

On defense Wilmington had Delaney Gillis and Marissa Lena with Colleen Brothers in net.

The defense was amazing in keeping the ball out of Wilmington's end. The girls' had several shots on net however in the first half were unsuccessful in putting the ball in goal.

A substitution saw Amy Scott, Jane Farrell and Kim Woods on offense with the defense being provided by Megan Priem and Kim O'Dea. The offense again had many scoring opportunities but couldn't put Wilmington on the board. The defense protected their keeper and didn't allow for many shots on Colleen.

After halftime, Marissa took over in net and a very determined Wilmington offense wasn't about to be stopped.

The offense now had the fresh legs of Colleen Brothers, Kelsey and Kim W. and it didn't take long for them to bring the ball down the field and score. The first goal was scored by Kim W.

after a super shot.

The next two goals came from fantastic shots on net by Colleen. They definitely had the Melrose keeper hopping. The score remained at 3-0 due to the sound defense of Delaney, Megan, and Kim O.

Congratulations to the girls of this team as this victory was well deserved and well earned. Many thanks to the coaches Walter Duffy, Andrea Gillis and Andy Mangan for their time and dedication to this team.

Juvenile Firestarters

New program puts out the flame in youth who light fires

By DOUG WOOD-BOYLE

When the problem of how to stop children with a burning curiosity about fire from becoming serious arsonists first presented itself to Wakefield Fire Captain Michael Sullivan he consulted with friends at nearby social service agencies and developed what is now known as the Juvenile Fire-setters Intervention Program.

Over the years, the program has become so successful it has been incorporated into a multi-community program through the auspices of the Middlesex County District Attorney's Office.

"Where ever I speak, I always use this as a good example of how the schools, police, fire fighters and the District Attorney's office work together," said Middlesex County District Attorney Martha Coakley. "This is a program that works."

Captain Sullivan designed his program in 1997 with the help of Bonnie Coopersmith of the Northeast Family Institute and staff of the Wakefield offices of the Massachusetts

Department of Mental Health and the Department of Mental Retardation and other agencies.

"The program came about from a situation where parents were calling the (Wakefield Fire) Department about children who had a curiosity about fire," Sullivan recalled. "Basically we didn't have any program to deal with the situation."

Realizing he had many resources within walking distance from the fire station, the fire safety officer, then a lieutenant, sought out the help he needed.

"I was fortunate to get a call back from Bonnie Coopersmith," Sullivan said.

"The two of us started to talk about the issue and pulled the other agencies into the meetings. As a result of those meetings the original funding for the program was provided by a grant from the Massachusetts FAIR Plan (Fair Access to Insurance Requirements) operated by the Massachusetts Property Insurance Underwriting Association (MPIUA).

Sullivan's program was not the first in the state as similar programs had been developed in Fall River and Lowell. However it was the only one at the time between Boston and Lowell and it served communities such as Malden, Melrose, and Everett, as well as Wakefield.

The program now serves children from Woburn, Reading, North Reading, Burlington and Wilmington. A similar program has been started in Essex County that serves children from Lynnfield and another program is being started under Coakley's office, in Arlington.

Attorney General Thomas Reilly, then the district attorney for Middlesex saw the importance of the concept and made it a part of his office. Coakley, who was an assistant DA under Reilly, has kept the project alive, under the direction of Robyn Pontremoli, since taking the DA's office after Reilly was elected Attorney General.

"We saw a pattern, at the time, of children starting fires," Coakley recalled. "It made sense (to organize the different programs that were starting)."

She added, "It has been very effective for getting to kids who have been in trouble."

According to figures from Coakley's office, "Arson is the number one crime committed by juveniles, The US Fire Administration reports that one third of all set fires are begun by children, one third of all children that are killed in fires have set the fires themselves, and fire is the leading cause of deaths in the home for children under the age of five in the U.S."

On average the program now serves about 170 children per-year, throughout the county. Each 10-week class serves about seven children and the next class will be starting in Wakefield later this month.

"It is hard to know how successful the program is," Coakley said. "We do see a high percentage of completion and a lack of recidivism."

Sullivan explained that the Wakefield program is unique in its team teaching approach. The approach not only teaches what can happen as the result of fire started by accident or curiosity, it also delves into the underlying causes that might motivate a child to start fires.

For being involved with "fire-play" Sullivan said. "The best chance to succeed occurs when the underlying issues are addressed."

As a result, fire fighters who participate in the pro

"CELLULAR" SILLY, ENTERTAINING

MOVIE: "CELLULAR"
GRADE: **

This movie is one of the surprises of the late summer season, a guilty pleasure that you know is silly, but you still can't take your eyes off it.

The plot involves a woman, played by Kim Basinger, who is locked in an attic by an intruder. She pieces together a broken land-line phone, dials a number, and somehow is connected to a pretty boy with not much else going on in his life, played by Chris Evans. She convinces him that he may be her last hope at getting out of this situation alive and well, and we're off to the emotional races.

This is that rare movie where you know the plot makes no sense, that this would probably never happen in the real world (I can see just about everyone I know simply hanging up the phone if they were on the receiving end of Basinger's call for help), but you are still sucked in, and genuinely end up caring about what happens to her. An enjoyable afternoon out.

SHORTTAKES

MOVIE: "BENJI: OFF THE LEASH"
GRADE: *

The hairy little hero from a series of movies in the 1970s returns to the big screen in this new children's adventure.

The story centers around a puppy, different from the rest of the litter, who is left for dead by a man illegally breeding dogs. The dog is secretly raised by the man's son, and eventually goes on to be chosen as the new 'Benji' following a nationwide search by a movie producer. Along the way, the dog finds a home for a stray, helps the boy and his mother deal with the abusive dog peddler, and manages to save his own mother from certain death.

The dogs are very well trained, and the movie actually touches upon some darker issues like family abuse and animal abuse, but doesn't dig deep enough to scare smaller children.

MOVIE: "EXORCIST: THE BEGINNING"
GRADE: NO STARS WHATSOEVER

If you are a horror fan, come in the Reading Chronicle offices and see me before having some coffee on any given day - the sight before your eyes will be more terrifying than any visual director Renny Harlin has put on the big screen in this mess of a movie.

Not only should this one be avoided at the movie theaters, but if you are a fan of 'The Exorcist' at all, you shouldn't even walk into a store that's selling it once it eventually hits the streets on DVD, which will probably be within 10 days based on its opening weekend box office take ($18 million). The fact that this movie shares anything with that classic example of movie horror at its best is more blasphemous than anything that came out of Linda Blair's mouth.

MOVIE: "ALIEN VS. PREDATOR"
GRADE: **

Two Hollywood heavy-weight science fiction series collide head-on in this so-so sci-fi action movie.

This movie has little to do with the 'Alien' or 'Predator' movies that have come before them (in fact, the current plotline apparently disregards the other 'Alien' movies entirely, as it is set in present-day 2004 - therefore, the human race would know about the alien killing machines well before they encounter them, supposedly for the first time, in the far-off future of the first 'Alien' movie).

Imagine that the Earth has been used for centuries as a kind of paintball arena, with the Predators using the Aliens as prey in a winner-take-all battle that apparently takes place every 100 years, and you have the basic premise behind this one.

The acting is nothing special, and director Paul W. S. Anderson takes way too long setting up the very flimsy relationships between the human characters before getting to what everyone who plunked down their money is waiting to see - a brawl to end it all between these two killing machines. The movie picks up once the fighting starts, but there's not enough of these scenes to salvage it.

Stretch out and Read Open House Sept. 22

SOAR (Stretch Out And Read), a literacy enrichment program for kindergarten-age children in Wakefield and surrounding communities, will hold an Open House on Wednesday, September 22 from 6:30-8 p.m.

Located at 12 Foundry Street in Wakefield, across from the Harvard Mills Building, SOAR offers morning and afternoon small-group literacy enrichment as a supplement to half-day kindergarten programs. A two-hour, once-a-week program will also be available for full-day kindergartners.

The teaching staff of SOAR works with teachers to build on the pre-reading skills being taught in the classroom. The SOAR curriculum provides children a safe, nurturing atmosphere where they will have the opportunity to collaborate with peers and acquire a sense of being part of a community of learners.

"My dream is to spark the love of reading in every child," said SOAR Director Kathy Conover, a Wakefield resident and former member of the Wakefield public school system. "My goal is to provide a fun learning experience, with a low teacher/student ratio, to supplement the kindergarten literacy curriculum."

Each seven-week quarter of the SOAR program consists of 28 hours of instruction (two-hour sessions twice weekly). Morning (9-11 a.m.) and afternoon (12:30-2:30 p.m.) sessions are held on Monday/Wednesday and Tuesday/Thursday.

Registrations are now being accepted for the first quarter of the 2004/2005 SOAR program, which begins on October 18.

SOAR also offers after-school individual and group tutoring in reading, math and Spanish.

For more information, please call 781-246-7676 or visit www.soarliteracy.com.

Planning to plan, Wilmington

"The Board of Selectmen voted to adopt the Affordable Housing Plan for Planned Production as developed by the Master Plan Committee in concert with Ralph Wilmer of McGregor & Associates, P.C.," notes the "Wilmington Town Crier."

"The plan offers guidance and recommendations for providing affordable housing to meet the needs of the community and to have more control over 40B developments," Raymond Forest, the Chairman of the Master Plan Committee, told selectmen.

"Approximately 30 members were appointed to the Master Plan Committee in 2003 and they have met monthly for nearly 8 months. Additionally, the Master Plan Committee held two public forums to receive resident comments on affordable housing. Following the second public forum, the Master Plan Committee voted unanimously, with the exception of two abstentions, to approve the plan."

"This plan is just a plan," said Kenneth Lifton, the Vice Chairman of the Master Plan Committee. "It represents options which the town may want to consider in terms of affordable housing."

"The purpose of the plan is to determine the specific housing needs of Wilmington residents; develop strategies to create more affordable housing to meet these needs; increase housing choices for residents; meet state mandated Chapter 40B requirements; and create affordable housing in locations that the town finds it appropriate to do so."

"The committee found that renters, elderly citizens, young families, young adults, and town employees were the specific demographics most in need of affordable housing in Wilmington...."

Come and get it, North Reading

"The Board of Selectmen plans to investigate ways of attracting businesses to North Reading," notes the "North Reading Transcript."

"Chairman Marci Bailey, during a recent discussion of goals for the upcoming year, said she felt it was important to find ways to get businesses to move into vacant buildings along the town's roadways."

"I want to see North Reading as a vibrant place where people want to stop and patronize the businesses," explained Bailey.

"The goal, she said, should be '100 percent occupancy,' particularly along Route 28."

"Route 28 is the part of North Reading that most people pass through and see. I'd like to see them stop here and spend a little more money," said Bailey, who said she makes a point of patronizing local businesses whenever possible.

"Bailey said she is looking to find ways to lure businesses, primarily small businesses, to town."

"Selectman Bob Mauceri suggested inviting the Reading-North Reading Chamber of Commerce to a future meeting in order to discuss the proposal and involve its members in the process.

"Though he was in favor of forming a committee to brainstorm on ways to attract businesses to North Reading, Selectman Joe Veno said he felt Town Hall shouldn't be 'in the business of finding tenants for vacant buildings.'"

"Selectman Kevin Callagy reminded the committee that any type of campaign to attract business to North Reading 'is going to cost us money....'"

Banner news, Winchester

"There is now a fee for hanging a banner at the downtown railroad bridge," notes the Winchester edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"A fee has also been established for news rack permits."

"Banners are constantly seen hanging on the railroad bridge at the downtown rotary. Heretofore, there has

STUDENTS ON THE WAY UP

Wakefield: Looking good

"Wakefield High School Principal Gary Rook appeared before the School Committee to provide an overview of the changes to the Student Handbook," notes the Wakefield edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"Principal Rook addressed some of the changes in the policy or rules at Wakefield High School, located at 60 Farm Street.

"The tardy policy that was in place for the 2003-2004 school year called for the school administrators to contact a youngster's parent or guardian after ten tardies.

"Now, beginning with the 2004-2005 school year, school administrators will instead contact the parents of habitually tardy students after five incidences of tardiness.

"We want our students in school every day, all day," Rook noted.

"Also addressed was the Wakefield High School dress code policy, which includes the requirement that students must wear shoes at all times and hats may not be worn while the students are at school.

"Pajama tops and pants will not be permitted and female students should have appropriate length skirts and dresses.

"WHS Principal Rook made it clear that the School

Administrators are the ones charged with making the final decision when it comes to the school's dress code policy.

"Offending students are encouraged to wear business-like apparel and the teens will be encouraged to change their clothes from their lockers or have their parents bring them a change of clothes.

"Rook also outlined the policy for violation of the Tobacco, Alcohol and Drug policy for students...."

Reading: 'Eagle' to please

"Kevin J. Harrington of Troop 702 is the town's newest Eagle Scout," notes the Reading edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"Kevin joined Cub Scout Pack 6, Milton, in the fall of 1993. He was part of the snake den and achieved Bobcat and Wolf, among other Cub Scout advancements. In 1994, he and his family moved to Reading from Milton, MA. He transferred to Den 7 in Pack 702. His den consisted of Tim Radville, Chris Rattigan and Rich Kenney. He earned Arrow of Light in 1997.

"He crossed over to Troop 702 in April 1997. He earned his Boy Scout badge May 1997. His first experience at summer camp was at Chesterfield Scout Reservation, in Western Massachusetts. Besides his first merit badges, the camp was highlighted by the appearance of the infamous black bear.

"Kevin earned his Tenderfoot rank in May of 1998 and had earned three merit badges. He became a Second Class Scout, October 1998 and advanced to the rank of First Class Scout by October 1999.

"Kevin attended a newly established summer camp called Camp Bell in June 2000 with four adult leaders and 15 scouts from Troop 702. He was able to earn five more merit badges while attending Camp Bell and Hidden Valley that summer. Kevin moved up to the rank of Star Scout in May, 2001.

"Kevin became an Assistant Senior Patrol Leader in May of 2001 and earned Life Scout at the annual Turkey Roast in November 2001. His board consisted of many faces of 702's past adult leaders such as Ron Strandberg, Reggie Bolivar, and Ben Nichols, an all-star board.

"During summer camp of 2002 at Hidden Valley, he completed the C.O.P.E. (Challenging Outdoor Personal Experience) Course....

"Kevin is a graduate from Reading Memorial High School, a National Honor Society Member, and is attending Ithaca College (NY)"

"However, there has been a cost to the town, reportedly around $300.

"According to a memo from Acting Town Manager Mark Twogood to the selectmen, DPW Director Ed Grant has stated that 'it is becoming increasingly difficult to provide nonessential services to the community during regular working hours.'

"In 2003, about 60 banners were hung and removed, requiring staff time and the use of a town-owned bucket truck. Staff recommended having the DPW hang and remove banners after 3 p.m. during overtime hours and charging a fee.

"Acting on this recommendation, the selectmen voted to institute a fee of $100 per banner to cover the cost of the service, effective September 1.

"In the fall of 2003, Town Meeting adopted a new section into the zoning bylaw to govern news racks. That bylaw amendment having been approved by the attorney general, the Board of Selectmen turned its attention to establishing a fee, as provided for in the bylaw.

"Acting on staff recommendation, it voted a fee of $50 and annual renewal of $25...."

WWII PLANES ON DISPLAY IN BEVERLY

In honor of heroic veterans, the Collings Foundation's Wings of Freedom Tour of the Boeing B-17 Flying Fortress and consolidated B-24 Liberator will be on Display as part of the annual 120 city nationwide tour in Beverly from Sept. 14 - 17.

Both aircraft have been restored to exacting 1944 condition and have revived the old "barnstorming" tour method of the 1950s to bring the aircraft to communities and citizens interested in reliving history through a hands on experience of either walking through the aircraft on the ground or even flying a mission.

The B-17 Flying Fortress is one of only 5 remaining flying examples left in the United States. The B-24 Liberator is the sole remaining flying example out of over 19,000 that were built during WWII.

During the display visitors will be able to tour the aircraft for a small donation and see what it was like as a crewman aboard during WWII. All positions aboard the aircraft are accurately restored with the original instruments, guns and equipment.

Visitors also may take the once in a lifetime opportunity to fly an actual mission aboard the B-17 or B-24. Flight experiences allow visitors to fly aboard the aircraft for the ultimate in hands on learning. Flights are 30 minutes and are a tax deductible donation of $400 per person. Interested visitors should call 978-562-9182 for reservations.

The Foundation requests a donation of $8 for adults and $4 for children to tour both aircraft. All donations help support the maintenance of the aircraft, which costs nearly $3100 per flight hour per aircraft.

Ease osteoarthritis pain of summer

The warm summer months can be especially difficult for individuals with joint pain due to the heat, humidity and increased activity which commonly places added strain on joints which are already afflicted with conditions like osteoarthritis.

According to the Arthritis Foundation, osteoarthritis, one of the most common joint ailments and more prevalent forms of arthritis, affects an estimated 20.7 million Americans, mostly over the age of 45.

Osteoarthritis (OA) is a degenerative disease in which the cartilage that covers the ends of the bones in the joint deteriorates, resulting in pain and loss of movement as the bones begin to rub against nearby bones.

The Arthritis Foundation notes that 80 percent of those people suffering from osteoarthritis report some form of limitation in movement or activities.

This arthritis-related pain can be especially frustrating during a season when many individuals are out gardening, on the golf course, walking, running, playing in the park, or playing sports like softball and frisbee.

Given the pain and physical limitations associated with many forms of arthritis, some sufferers find themselves foregoing their favorite summertime activities, resulting in a more sedentary lifestyle.

Currently, there is no cure for osteoarthritis. Instead, doctors focus on alleviating joint pain with over-the-counter and prescription anti-inflammatory drugs, many of which can have very adverse side effects.

As an alternative, researchers have been looking at nutritional intervention associated with foods and supplements.

During the growth period extending from childhood to early adulthood, vitamins and minerals - particularly vitamin C, calcium, and vitamin D - promote the growth of cartilage and bone tissue, along with the development of healthy joints.

The stronger the joint, the theory goes, the less vulnerable it is to damage.

Promising new research suggests that collagen hydrolysate (CH), a special form of gelatin, may hold the ability to strengthen joint cartilage, while also reducing the pain.

Collagen hydrolysate has the same amino acid composition as the collagen that's found in joint cartilage. Collagen provides the joint with its tensile strength and stiffness.

Two studies have suggested that consumption of at least ten grams of CH every day can reduce pain and improve physical function in patients with osteoarthritis when taken for a minimum of 60 days.

Another study demonstrated that CH not only reduced pain, but also lessened the need for pain-relievers in patients who were afflicted with osteoarthritis. Collagen hydrolysate is currently available in several nutritional supplements that are on the market.

Previously, researchers had thought that cartilage was a "dead" tissue, unable to regenerate once it was damaged or deteriorated.

What makes CH particularly interesting is that laboratory studies have found that it can actually stimulate the production of collagen, and in turn, stimulate the regeneration of cartilage in the joint area.

So the summer months can be easy and pain-free for those with osteoarthritis - you just have to know where to look for relief.

Stoneham: Best partnership of all

"When you were a kid, what dreams did you have for your future?" notes the "Stoneham Independent."

"Did you picture yourself as a doctor, making everyone healthy and happy? Or perhaps you saw yourself as a scientist, sitting before bubbling test tubes. Teacher or truck driver? Musician or make up artist?"

"Today's young people have so many careers from which to choose; but having so many choices makes the choice that much harder. That's why the Stoneham Chamber of Commerce is working with Stoneham Public Schools to provide leadership to Stoneham High School freshmen through the Career Mentoring Program.

"Through the program, which is in its fifth year, Career Mentors agree to visit their assigned classroom - working in teams of three or four - four times a year for ninety minutes each session. A curriculum and pre-session orientation are provided and the sessions included large and small group discussions, computer research and skills assessments. All mentors must submit an application and agree to a CORI, which is required by the School Department.

"As part of the program, mentors and students are asked to evaluate the program and offer suggestions for improvement. Most students, says Iovanni, commented that they learned something new and have a better understanding of how their work as students will impact their futures. 'I started wondering what I should be studying in school for certain careers and I thought about careers that I might not have thought about before,' noted one student on her evaluation. Said another, 'Before this (program) I didn't know what I wanted to do and now I have an idea of what I will be good at. It really made me think...'"

If you'd like to read about your favorite school, student or teacher in "School Notes," please send school newsletters and other relevant information to Phyllis Nissen, "School Notes," Middlesex East Supplement, Box 240, Reading, MA 01867 or to notestowns@comcast.net. We welcome student writing.

Keep your skin looking healthy this winter

As the mercury plummets and the humidity drops outside, the thermostats are hiked up to raise the temperature indoors.

What many don't realize is that dry heat causes skin to lose moisture, leading to problems such as dry or cracked skin.

Research shows that 60 percent of adults in America suffer from cracked skin, particularly during the colder months.

"Winter air can rob skin of its moisture, causing it to weaken and lose its capacity to repair itself," says David E. Bank, M.D., director of the Center for Dermatology, Cosmetic and Laser Surgery in Mount Kisco, New York. He is also the author of a book entitled "Beautiful Skin."

Dr. Bank added, "In fact, the skin is more sensitive in the winter because it's drier and more dehydrated."

Here are some suggestions from Dr. Bank on how to care for one's skin during the colder portion of the year:

- Take one quick, lukewarm shower per day and use a mild cleanser.

Taking an extremely hot or cold shower causes the skin to lose more moisture. After showering, pat dry and while still in the bathroom, apply a non-greasy moisturizer to the

- Use only fragrance-free laundry detergents when washing clothes and do not use fabric softeners in the dryer.

Harsh detergents and fabric softeners can irritate dry or sensitive skin.

- When washing hands, use the mildest antibacterial cleanser that can be found.

- Wear latex or plastic gloves while washing the dishes. Hot water can dry the skin, especially on the hands.

- Use a good quality hand moisturizer. Apply it before going to bed at night, so the moisturizer has the greatest amount of time to penetrate the skin.

- Apply moisturizer in layers to avoid getting dry, cracked areas on the skin.

However, if you suffer from skin cracks, apply an antibiotic cream or ointment like Neosporin to avoid infection and promote healing.

- Just because the weather is cold doesn't mean you can't get a sunburn.

Remember to wear sunscreen, especially when enjoying an outdoor sport. Many facial and body moisturizers contain SPF.

Also, wear a hat and gloves to protect the face and hands from the drying, irritating effects of the cold air.

Juvenile Firestarters from S-1

gram will teach the fire safety and fire prevention aspects, while the social service people involved deal with the various reasons such as peer pressure, curiosity, delinquency, and other aspects. One of the most prevalent of these other aspects is child abuse related issues.

Sullivan said the social work people try to "...give (the children) some coping tools to help them deal with whatever is stressing them in their lives."

He added, "You need a lot of patience to teach fire safety to kids. You need a lot of patience to do this; it is a difficult kind of teaching."

Many of the children who attend the one hour per-week after school classes are there on a voluntary basis and have been sent by their parents. However, in some cases the child may be ordered to take the course as part of a court settlement or an agreement between Coakley's office and the local police that will keep the child from getting a juvenile criminal record.

Because of the diversity of the reasons a child may be in a class, and the diversity of ages, different styles are used in different classes. In one style, the teachers will set up a court case where the students will conduct a mock trial of two children arrested for arson.

After the verdict is delivered the class will discuss the reasons for it and the outcome of the case.

Both Sullivan and Coakley have been giving Pontremoli high praise for the work she has done in keeping the program alive. She is responsible for the coordination of the program and for seeking out funding from various state and federal grant sources.

"Robyn has been helping me out with the paperwork and going to meetings," Sullivan said. "It was friendly absorption into the system."

In the past, the program has received funding from Juvenile Accountability Incentive Bloc Grant and from the Coalition for Juvenile Fire Setters Intervention. However, as with other valuable programs, the state budget cuts have been felt in this field as well.

Sullivan noted that all of the people involved with teaching the classes are doing so while working their regular shifts and there is no overtime for the firefighters that are involved.

"We've been trying to keep it together because it is one thing that works as far as kids setting fires," Coakley said.

According to Sullivan, one sign of success in the program may be in the fact that several of the original people involved in the first meetings in 1997 are still involved in the program and teaching classes today. Each instructor is given a full training on how to deal with the children before entering the classroom. This is training that has developed from the original meetings with Coopersmith and Sullivan.

For more information, contact your local fire safety officer, or Pontremoli in the Middlesex County District Attorney's office at (508) 875-9799.

Some common lawn problems and cures

If you've been working hard on your lawn throughout the year - fertilizing, watering, aerating - but still can't get it right, you're not alone. Even lawn care experts experience turf troubles now and then.

Here's some common problems and effective solutions to these dilemmas that might help homeowners identify specific lawn-related conditions.

Q. I take care of my lawn, but I've got bare spots. What's causing this?

A. Most likely, bare spots are the result of shade, traffic or disease. Like any plant, grass needs sunlight and if a particular area is well-shaded, try planting a more shade-tolerant variety of grass or ground cover in the affected area.

Aerate the area to protect it against heavy traffic, which compresses the soil and makes it difficult for plants to grow, much less thrive.

To protect the lawn from disease, water infrequently but deeply and keep mower blades sharp. Also, mow often enough to cut only the top third of the grass plant and use a fertilizer with a high percentage of slow-release nitrogen.

Q. My lawn feels soft and spongy. What's wrong?

A. Chances are, you've got thatch. A thin layer helps prevent ground compaction and holds moisture in the soil, but too thick a layer holds back water, nutrients and air.

A dethatching machine can be used to resolve this problem, or try a core aerator to pull up the excess thatch and plugs of soil.

If you aerate, rake the plugs back over the lawn as a sort of

Spindler & O'Neill Parade of Homes for Easter Seals

For nearly two decades, Century 21 Spindler & O'Neill has been supporting the Easter Seals and the wonderful work that is performed by this organization, as they provide a variety of programs and services to children and adults with special needs and/or disabilities.

Century 21 Realtor and Easter Seals 2004 Committee Chair Valerie Shaw explained this year's efforts, which come as an idea that is quite popular in many other communities.

"We all know that North Reading has some of the most special properties in New England," Shaw explained.

"On October 16, from 12:00 noon to 4:00 p.m., we anticipate a fun-filled event that will involve an array of open house events that will showcase homes of various styles, sizes, locations and market values as part of the Easter Sales Parade of Homes," Shaw indicated.

"This year, we are asking our friends and neighbors in North Reading to help us in our most aggressive campaign to date."

Broker and owner Dave O'Neill added.

"The homes on the Parade of Homes are not currently for sale, but we have asked local residents to showcase their homes to the public in order to raise money that will be donated to the Easter Seals.

"Much like a traditional open house that we conduct while marketing a property, we invite the public to see the interiors of these homes for decorating ideas, kitchen and bath designs, landscaping accomplishments and a whole host of amenities that we envision as features that they might like to take back home with them," O'Neill explained.

Another local realtor, Joyce Spindler, also shared her thoughts on the event, stating, "We're thrilled to be able to give back to the community!"

"Easter Seals helps people who have been disabled as the result of illness, accident or aging, by providing services, day care, and in-home companionship to frail elders, summer camp activities to disabled children and comprehensive up-to-date referrals for disability services to a wide array of agencies and organizations," Spindler added.

The Century 21 system has been affiliated with Easter Seals since 1979.

As the organization's top contributor, the Century 21 system has raised in excess of $75 million that goes toward helping the disabled lead fuller, more independent lives.

In 2003, the Century 21 system raised more than $4 million for Easter Sales.

"Locally, Century 21 Spindler & O'Neill has participated in many ways over the years, including sponsoring several volleyball tournaments, a golf tournament, an overnight stay at Brandeis University while running in a 24-hour relay race and we even participated in a bowling marathon," O'Neill explained.

With an early donation of $15 to the Easter Seals, locals can tour any or all of the homes that will be featured in the Parade of Homes.

Tickets can be purchased on the day of the event for a slightly higher price of $21.

Maps of the properties, the cost of which will be underwritten by several local businesses, will be provided on the day of the event.

Tickets can be obtained through any of the realtors at Century 21 Spindler & O'Neill, located at 247 Main Street (Route 28) in North Reading, or by calling 978-664-2100 or 781-944-2100.

Lawn From S-10

top dressing, this will start a mulching process that breaks down thatch.

Q. I thought grass was supposed to be green - but mine doesn't have a nice color. Why?

A. Dehydrated grass does not have a fresh, rich green color. Signs of dehydration include bluish-green grass, curling grass blades and foot printing. Water the lawn with an inch of water per week to help keep it green, healthy and strong.

Q. I've been seeding, watering and fertilizing, but my lawn's still not right. Do I just not have a green thumb?

A. Don't give up on those thumbs just yet; conduct a soil test.

Take random samples by digging down six to eight inches and removing organic matter, including grass, stems and roots. Mix the soil and send it to a county extension agent, university turf specialist or soil-testing lab. The lab should be able to identify problem areas and offer effective solutions.

The most effective way to solve a problem is to prevent it. Fertilizing in the spring and fall, watering appropriately, keeping the mower maintained and following the one-third rule of mowing will help give the lawn the basics it needs for a long, healthy life.
